Redmen Lose In First Half

By FRED THARP
(News-Journal Sports Editor)

A great Mansfield Senior high school basketball team last night won the Class A sectional tournament, defeating favored Bucyrus by the surprising score of 68-46 on the Mansfield floor.

The whole story of the game could be wrapped up in the torrid first half play of the Tygers that spelled victory for Coach Vern Hoffman's crew.

They were terrific in rolling up a 42-to-10 halftime margin. The Bengal shooting was out of this world and the pass-work was outstanding. Actually Senior high didn't make a mistake in the first two quarters against the bewildered Bucyrus team which had won 16 straight and 17 of 18 during the season.

Both teams advanced to district play, Senior high drawing a ticket to Sandusky and Bucyrus getting the nod to Findlay. Drawing for the Sandusky district is scheduled today at 2 p. m.

All of the Tygers joined in the first half carnage to kayo the Redmen's chances for the title. But Bucyrus showed its class by never giving up. In fact, Bucyrus outscored the Bengals in the last half, 36 to 26, as the shooting accuracy changed sides.

BREAK FEST

Senior high counted on four fast breaks in the first period to put the game on ice. In the opening quarter, the Tygers pumped in nine of 14 shots and added seven of 12 in the second period. The last half saw Mansfield make only eight of 34 basket attempts.

The shot work of Soph Ken McCally set the pace as he swished in "two for two" in the first quarter and "four for six" in the second. He tried four long one-handers in the second quarter and made 'em all. The lanky youngster cooled down along

Will Rebuild Old Kenyon

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Old Kenyon dormitory, destroyed last Sunday in a fire which claimed the lives of nine students at Kenyon college, will be rebuilt immediately, the school's president said yesterday.

"The executive committee of the board of trustees, meeting with other trustees, has voted the immediate restoration of Old Kenyon," Dr. Gordon Keith Chalmers told a meeting of the Northern Ohio Alumni association.

Dr. Chalmers said the cost of the rebuilt structure will be about $1,000,000. "The insurance settlement is still being negotiated," he said.

Old Kenyon was said to be the oldest building of NEO-Gothic design used by a college in the United States. The center portion, where the students died, was erected in 1827.

"The exterior will be exactly the same as it was, but the interior will be modern and fireproof," Dr. Chalmers said.

Stop Handling Food Packages

MILWAUKEE — (AP) — Postmaster John A. Fleissner said orders were received from Washington yesterday to refuse acceptance of packages for mailing to Berlin.

Fleissner said the order came by teletype and merely said no Berlin-bound packages were to be accepted and those already on hand were to be returned to their senders.

The postmaster said he could offer no explanation.

Blind Couple Finds Reason For Gaiety

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—(AP)—The blind wife of a blind husband felt her baby jump as a photographer's bulb flashed at General hospital yesterday.

She hugged her baby closer and said gratefully, "My baby can see."

Mrs. Alice Chesser said she and her husband, James Chesser, had worried for months over the possibility the child would be born blind, too.

Trust Fund To Benefit 5 Agencies

School, Church to Share Dickson Estate

Five Mansfield agencies and organizations will receive a share of the estate of the late James M. Dickson, but it will be a number of years before the bequests are paid.

The will, filed yesterday in probate court, specifies that the Woodland school and other agencies receive money from a trust fund 21 years after the death of the last beneficiary named in the will. No estimate of the estate was made.

Mr. Dickson, who died last week, was a business leader in the city. He developed the Woodland residential area.

He specified that the trust fund be used to build an auditorium for the Woodland school and that other funds be paid to the Humane society, First Presbyterian church, Friendly House and General hospital. They will share equally five-sixths of the trust fund. Nieces and nephews will get the other sixth.

The money for the legacies to the public agencies is to come from the sale of Mr. Dickson's one-half interest in the Dickson building, the Dickson market and the Evergreens restaurant after the required number of years.

SISTER BENEFITS

Miss Lillian R. Dickson, a sister, is the principal heir. To her Mr. Dickson bequeathed the 540 Stewart lane house and all the household items such as furniture, books, automobiles and jewelry.

She also will receive $250 per month, beginning three months after Mr. Dickson's death, until the trust fund provided in the will is set up. After the fund is in operation Miss Dickson will receive $500 per month as long as she lives.

Mr. Dickson also left $2,000 to Yale university and $1,000 to Phillips academy, Andover, Mass., both of which he attended as a student.

The money left the Humane society is to be administered for the care of indigent, aged and incurably sick persons, and is to be known as the "Dickson Fund."

The trust fund also will grant separate monthly allowances to 17 other persons, the highest of which is $50. Upon the death of Mr. Dickson's sister, these 17 persons will receive double the stipulated amounts.

Twenty-one years after the death of the last living of these persons the fund will grant the civic organizations their legacies.

Mr. Dickson also left amounts totaling $17,500 to 19 persons, mostly relatives. The highest of these will go to four different persons, $2,000 each. These legacies are to be paid out of the sale of lots on Stewart Farm.

Red Cross Fund Climbs to $5,499

The campaign for $48,835 opened Tuesday and will continue through March.

Stricken In Cafe

Warning Issued on 'Untried Schemes'

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Congressional fears of possible new billions in cost apparently have doomed President Truman's proposal for expansion of federal public assistance — or home relief — to include needy persons able to work.

But it appeared that persons disabled and unable to work might be added to the aid list.

There were signs that Congress may bring no more than 10,000,000 additional persons under the old age insurance program. Mr. Truman has asked that 20,000,000 be added, bringing the total to 50,000,000.

Simultaneously with these developments the Social Security committee of the United States Chamber of Commerce issued a report calling the basic idea of social security good — but warning against over-expansion and "untried schemes."

Five Feared Lost As Plane Overdue

HILL FIELD, Utah —(AP)— An air force trainer plane, with five aboard, was reported missing yesterday on a flight from Hill field to Mountain Home, Idaho.

Asks Broader Power For Defense 'Boss'

WASHINGTON —(AP)— President Truman asked Congress yesterday to give his defense secretary the full authority he needs to direct the frequently feuding armed forces.

To bring this about, he recommended that the service unification law be changed to set up the present national military establishment as a full-fledged "department of defense."

In a special message to Congress—where lawmaking currently is slowed down by a Senate filibuster—he urged "prompt consideration" for his recommendations.

This urgency sprang from two things:

1. The President's assertion that it is essential to have an effective and workable organization in a world of long range bombers, guided missiles and atom bombs.

2. The fact that within a month a new defense secretary, Louis Johnson, will succeed James V. Forrestal. The outgoing secretary has complained of insufficient authority over the three elements of the unified military establishment, the Army, Navy, and Air Force.

While Mr. Truman did not mention this point, one of the basic troubles of the defense establishment is that it existed chiefly as a coordinating agency of government.

In line with this, he also recommended creation of the positions of undersecretary and three assistant secretaries.

1,000 Flee High Water

MISSOURI VALLEY, Ia. — (AP) — Caught in the flood waters of two ice-jammed streams, this western Iowa town of 4,000 persons last night was without gas and on a strictly limited drinking water ration.

An estimated 250 families numbering about 1,000 persons have been evacuated from their homes since waters from the Boyer river to the east and south overflowed here. Willow Creek on the west went out early yesterday.

Before starting to recede, the flood waters swept swiftly into low-lying residential districts in the southern and western sections of town after dikes were broken.

Aerial Academy Proposed

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The National Military establishment came out yesterday for an air force academy, like the army's West Point and the navy's Annapolis.

Defense Secretary Forrestal announced the NME has "decided to support legislation authorizing an air academy" because it is impossible for the two oldline schools to supply officers for all three services.

Forrestal asked a newly created eight-man advisory board on service academies to make recommendations for the air academy plan not later than that date. The advisory board includes Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, president of Columbia university.

There has been no decision on location, defense spokesmen said.

NEED EXPANSION

Forrestal said that:

"Although the departments of the army and navy have agreed to allocate up to 40 per cent and seven per cent of the current graduating classes at West Point and Annapolis, respectively, on a voluntary basis, to be commissioned in the air force, this plan for the present academic year does not represent a permanent solution, nor can it be considered a precedent for the future.

"Since there can be no question concerning the need for an expansion in the capacity of the present academy system and since West Point and Annapolis cannot, for physical reasons, be expanded substantially beyond their present size, it has been decided to support legislation authorizing the establishment of a third, an air academy."

The air force has started drafting legislation. Forrestal wrote President Truman on December 15 that there probably would be need for a separate air service academy.

Both the army and navy are understood to have complained to the defense establishment about the extra load placed on their schools by the requirements for schooling air force junior officers.

Pyramid Fad Leads to Fine For Couple

MEMPHIS, Tenn, — (AP) — A California couple was fined $204 in city court after being accused of starting a "pyramid club" here.

Mr. and Mrs. Orville Lee Burns of Oceanside were fined $52 each on charges of gaming and being suspicious persons.

Police Chief Pat Armour said any other persons operating the clubs, similar to the chain letter fad, would be arrested.

Hint Royall On Way Out

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The Capital heard reports yesterday that Army Secretary Kenneth C. Royall may step out of his job by mid-April.

The reports came from persons who, because of friendship and official association, were in position to be well informed but who could not permit use of their names.

They persisted despite a White House news conference statement by President Truman Thursday that all three service secretaries — Royall, Navy Secretary Sullivan and Air Secretary Symington — would stay on their jobs.

Royall has visited the White House several times within recent weeks. He has told reporters he wants to leave "whenever I can do so in good conscience."

Rush to Aid Accused Spy; U. S. Silent

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Soviet Ambassador Alexander S. Panyushkin demanded yesterday that the United States release a Russian U. N. attache arrested in New York on a spy charge.

Panyushkin called on Undersecretary of State James Webb and discussed the case for almost an hour.

Webb told him the State department is looking into the matter in consultation with the Justice department and the U. N. secretariat, for which the Russian, Valentine A. Gubitchev, worked. No direct answer to the Russian demand was made public.

Arrested with the Russian was an American woman employe of the Justice department, Miss Judith Coplon, 27. Both were charged with stealing U. S. secrets.

Gubitchev was suspended immediately from his U. N. post. Wilder Foote, director of the world organization's press department, said the Russian would not come under U. N. immunity.

It was learned that in the view of responsible Washington officials Gubitchev does not have what is normally considered full diplomatic immunity. Rather, under laws governing U.S.-U.N. relations, he is said to have only such immunity as is necessary for him to carry on his work in a relatively minor position.

In Washington, Rep. Nixon (R-Calif) a member of the House un-American Activities committee, demanded a "full scale investigation" of the Justice department's "shocking, inexcusable laxity" in the case of Miss Coplon.

A spokesman said the committee may try to question Miss

VALENTINE A. GUBITCHEV

Reich State Rapped

BERLIN—(AP)—The Soviet union served notice last night it will not recognize nor accept the western German state now being formed under the guidance of the United States, France and Britain.

Coplon and Gubitchev if it would not interfere with the FBI's work.

TWO ARRAIGNED

Gubitchev, 32-year-old engineer who has been working on plans for the permanent U. N. headquarters under construction here, was held in $100,000 bail at his arraignment.

Federal Judge Simon H. Rifkind set bail of $20,000 for Miss Coplon although the government sought $50,000.

The department indicated Miss Coplon had been watched closely for some time and said there had been other "clandestine meetings" between her and Gubitchev.

Miss Coplon, a dimunitive brunette who smiled and appeared at ease at her arraignment, came under suspicion as the result of a routine government loyalty check, the Justice department statement indicated.

It added that as soon as the FBI reported her "suspected affiliations," Attorney General Tom Clark "insured against the misuse of restricted information coming into the possession of the department."

The Justice department said the F.B.I. trailed Miss Coplon from the time she left Washington at 1 p. m. until she met Gubitchev at 193rd street and Broadway here at 7:23 p. m.

From 7:23 "until 9 p. m. both these individuals avoided direct contact while they employed the usual techniques used to detect surveillance," the announcement said.

"They finally effected a contact when both dashed aboard a bus near 42nd street. The two were taken into custody on Third avenue between 14th and 15th streets."

Gromyko Promoted

LONDON—(AP)—Andrei A. Gromyko, who has made many sharp attacks on the western powers before the United Nations, has been appointed Russia's first deputy foreign minister; the Moscow radio announced last night.

He succeeds fiery Andrei Y. Vishinsky, who advanced to the post of foreign minister to succeed V. M. Molotov.

In contrast to his predecessor, Gromyko is quiet and soft-spoken. Nevertheless, he was in the forefront of many east-west clashes in the U. S. Security Council, where he headed the Soviet delegation from 1946 to 1948.

He was Russian ambassador to Washington from 1943 until 1946. Gromyko returned to Russia last July and spent a long vacation in the Crimea before assuming new duties in the foreign ministry in Moscow.

Old Records Found for Ladies' Aid

By EVELYN SHEER

Recently Mrs. Clarence Foust of Lexington came across an old secretarys notebook minus the binding and with time worn yellowed pages. Much of the writing had faded through the years. In this book was the record of the organizing of the Ladies Aid of the Lexington Congregational Church August 5th 1890 at the home of Mrs. George (Mrs. Foust's grandmother) Mrs. E. Sowers was the president and Mrs. E. A. Thuma, secretary

On October 21st 1890 the ladies voted to serve a chicken pie dinner with pumpkin pie or plum pudding for dessert. 25 cents for adults 15 cents for children under ten was charged to attend the affair. This same day they decided to cushion the church seats.

Many times rags were gathered and carpets made for the parsonage and even once they made rugs for the church. They served a large number of dinners, suppers and ice cream socials and did a considerable amount of quilting.

Tucked in between the pages were hastily scrawled secretarys notes, very old reciepts, the membership roll of the church, financial reports, (a half days sewing or quilting netted 50 cents) and lists of food to be solicited for suppers.

After fifty nine years of continual service to the church the ladies today continue to do many of the same things to aid the church. There are still ice cream socials, suppers, and quilting done today just as there was before the turn of the century.

"Because I'm a salesman on commission I never know just what my month's pay is going to be. I have some mighty sweet months—and some pretty sour ones, too. And that's all right so long as I'm in there pitchin'. I wouldn't want things different!

"The way the Phoenix Mutual has worked out my retirement plan is pretty neat. With $12,500 going to my family if I should kick off, I'll never get to feel that I'm just saving selfishly for my old age alone. They are protected, too."

U. S. Advance Defense In Pacific Centers on Okinawa

Island Has Five Major Air Fields

Battle, Typhoon Leave Shambles

By RUSSELL BRINES

TOKYO — (AP) A handful of Americans on Okinawa — still littered with the debris of typhoon and battle—are trying to prepare an advance dike against any communist tide that may flow from Asia.

Five major air fields on the tablelands and coastal plain have made bloody Okinawa the keystone of America's foremost defense line in the Pacific.

The advance line sweeps up from the Philippines through Okinawa and Japan to Alaska. Behind it lie the air fields of Guam and the naval base at Hawaii. Clark field, about 50 miles north of Manila, is being groomed as a major and self-contained base.

Okinawa—the island no one owns and everyone wants—is both the key and enigma of this aerial line of defense. It is in the center of the line—within 200 miles of the South China coast and within heavy bomber range of Siberia.

Bought with 7,000 American lives, Okinawa also has been claimed at various times by China, the Philippines and Japan. Until its status is settled definitely the question of U. S. funds to build it up properly likely will remain confused.

Airforce officers are saying—as did ground force officers in the Philippines seven years ago—that they are trying to do too much with too little. The program was set back seven months by the disastrous typhoon of 1948. Planning has been handcuffed by uncertainty over the amount of funds to be made available.

At present Okinawa has only half the aerial and ground force strength necessary for offensive and defensive operations in a quick war. Much remains to be done to make it over into a major base.

Americans also are conducting the quietest and least noticed of their world-wide operations. They are trying to revive the economy of 560,000 Okinawans and about 300,000 other natives in the rest of the Ryukyu island chain.

WAR LEAVES SLOWLY

War is only slowly leaving this rugged, 60-mile-long island. The war dead now are gone home and much of the wreckage of tanks and guns has been removed, but populous Naha, the capital, still is a city of ruins. The rusting hulls of ships and lighter crafts are still impaled on reefs, killed by wartime gunfire or the disastrous typhoons of 1945 and 1947.

There are 15,000 soldiers here and numerous civilian employes and their families.

A sense of uncertainty and frustration is augmented by the constant threat of typhoons and the feeling that Washington cannot make up its mind about Okinawa's future.

But the work of enlarging and improving the air fields continues. Combat training goes on all the time, with a lot of eager young pilots always anxious to take up their fast jet fighters.

Administration of the island is under the Ryukyus command of the ground forces. The ground forces are commanded by Maj. Gen. W. W. Eagles.

The Philippine scouts, who have made up most of the ground force, gradually are being withdrawn and probably will be succeeded by replacements from the United States.

Military authorities probably have had less trouble from the natives than anywhere else in the pacific. The Okinawans, released from the long bondage of Japan, are a docile, ragged people.

About 73,000 of Okinawa's 110,000 families are farmers. They work their own small plots of sweet potatoes and rice.

But with at most only 20 per cent of its land arable, and with industry negligible, Okinawa's economic future is bleak.

Door Forced Open

Sheriff's deputies answered a call early yesterday from William Hill, Timberland road, who reported that some one had forced his door open. Nothing was reported missing and no damage other than to the door-lock was reported.

BANKERS MEET—Sixty bankers representing 21 banks in Richland, Ashland and Knox counties attended the area bankers conference Thursday at the Mansfield-Leland hotel. Sponsored by the Federal Reserve bank of Cleveland similar conferences have attracted representatives from 415 banks this year. Spetches by Donald S. Thompson, vice president of the Federal Reserve bank, and A. T. Cutler, trade analyst of the Reserve bank, featured the conference.

World Unrest Still Troubles Pope Pius After Decade of Active Church Growth

VATICAN CITY—(AP)—Pope Pius XII entered upon his pontificate ten years ago greatly troubled over the world's prospects for peace.

On March 2, 1939, when 62 cardinals in solemn conclave chose Eugenio Pacelli to succeed the dead Pius XI on the throne of Peter, the black clouds of World War II hung over the world.

On March 2, 1949, the frail pontiff found the victor powers of the greatest war glaring across an "iron curtain" dividing Europe and the world.

The new pope, later to be called "pastor angelicus," made his initial appeal for peace March 3, 1939, one day after his election. A month later, on April 9, he addressed to the world an Easter plea for peace and social justice. On Aug. 24, from his summer retreat at Castelgandolfo, he called despairingly upon the world's leaders to halt their mad course toward war, saying, "nothing is lost with peace; all may be with war."

If was in vain. The Germans invaded Poland and quickly subjugated that predominantly Catholic land.

Norway and the low countries fell, although the pope raised his voice in vigorous condemnation. To his great grief, Mussolini took Italy into the war alongside the nazi ally. France fell. Britain staggered under bombing.

LISTED 5 REQUIREMENTS

On that black Christmas eve of 1940, with the fate of the world trembling in the balance, the pope listed five requirements he held basic to just and enduring peace:

1. Victory over hatred.
2. Victory over reciprocal distrust.
3. Victory over "utilitarianism conceived as the basis and rule of laws."
4. Victory over "divergences in the field of world economy."
5. Victory over egoism.

A year later, with the battle area extended to the far east and the United States in the war, he argued that the post-war world, if it wanted peace, must not permit threats to liberty and the integrity of nations, oppression of minorities, selfish monopoly of riches, total warfare, an armaments race or religious persecution.

Through the rest of the war and the uneasy years that followed, the pontiff returned again and again to this theme. Each Christmas Eve he exhorted the world anew to peace. Not for nothing had he chosen "opus justitiae pax" (peace is the work of justice) as the motto of his reign.

Yet, in his Christman message of 1947, he was constrained to say: "Never, since the end of hostilities, are souls so oppressed by the nightmare of a new war."

As he approached the double anniversary of March 2 — he celebrated his 73rd birthday that day, as well — the pope must have felt little of his program for peace has been put into practice.

Moreover, he views with unconcealed anguish the treatment to which the church is subjected in countries under Russia's influence.

Hungary has just tried and sentenced to life imprisonment its cardinal primate, Josef Mindszenty, for treasonable conduct, in an action unprecedented in recent annals of the church. Yugoslavia, in 1946, sent the archbishop of Zagreb, Msgr. Alois Stepinac, to prison for 16 years for alleged war crimes.

In the Yugoslav-occupied zone of the Trieste free territory, as in Yugoslavia proper, prelates and priests often have been ill-treated. The Vatican says most of them no longer are able to exercise their ministry. Romania, striving to break her Catholics' ties with Rome, uses force or the threat of force, imprisonment and exile as weapons. The story is the same in Albania. In Poland, Czechoslovakia and Bulgaria, and in the Baltic countries, say reports to the Holy See, communist-dominated governments hamper the work of the church.

In China, where decades of hard and oft-dangerous missionary work were capped three years ago by the bringing of the Chinese clergy into the hierarchy, China's cardinal has been named a war criminal by communist armies apparently sweeping all before them.

The pope repeatedly has expressed concern over the post-war plight of the German people he learned to love during the years he served as papal nuncio in Munich and Berlin. He is anxious for the safety of the holy places as Jews and Arabs struggle over Palestine.

CAUSE FOR REJOICING

Yet, if there has been much in his first ten years to grieve Pius XII, there also has been much at which he may rejoice:

1. In his pontificate, the church has grown mightily. There are today, he says, 400,000,000 Catholics — perhaps 100,000,000 more than the figure at the start of his reign. In ten years, the pontiff has created 53 new archdioceses and dioceses, raised 14 dioceses and 20 apostolic vicarates to archdioceses, elevated 80 vicarates and five prefectures nullius to dioceses, created 32 new vicarates and 32 new prefectures...

2. In the United States, the nation increasingly regarded by the Vatican as the bulwark of western civilization, the church thrives as never before. The faithful increase out of all proportion to the growth of population: They now number an estimated 26,000,000, against some 22,000,000 when Pacelli put on the fisherman's ring. Presidents Roosevelt and Truman, Protestants both, have recognized the weight of the papacy by sending their personal representative to the Vatican court.

3. In Mexico, and in other western countries where effervescent young democracy came into conflict with the ancient church, its situation is vastly improved.

4. In the pope's beloved Italy, where anti-clericalism stemming from the 19th century struggle for unity and later fascism threatened the church's position, the latest challenge—that of communism—has been turned back. The influence of the pope and the hierarchy figured largely in the victory of anti-communist forces at the April, 1948, elections. A Christian Democrat (Catholic) government today sees eye to eye with the vatican on most issues.

5. Throughout the western world, prelates of the curia say proudly, the prestige of the papacy has not been higher since the long ago times when it exercised temporal as well as spiritual rule through the holy Roman empire.

6. In the great consistories of February, 1946, at which he created 32 cardinals, the largest number ever to get the red hat at one time, Pius roundly reaffirmed the universality of the church, and its corallary: The democratic principle that the members of the sacred college, the senate of the church, will be chosen on the basis of proportional representation.

7. Again, the present pope has—gradually, and with consummate skill—brought the social doctrines of the sometimes slow-moving Roman church into tune with modern times. His encyclicals, Christmas Eve radio messages and other pronouncements, consistently stressing the dignity of individual man and his right to liberty, just recompense for his toil, and the pursuit of happiness, have completed the ideological structure begun with Leo XIII's famed 1891 encyclical "Rerum Novarum."

Finally, at the end of his first ten years, the pope could rejoice that his health — never robust — had stood up well to the strain of the difficult decade.

A number of times, bronchial ailments, perilous to one of his slender build, kept him briefly from his desk. But he overcame each, and in early 1949 he appeared in fine fettle for his years.

BERLIN — (UP) — Three American child welfare consultants have arrived in Germany to help lower this country's alarming infant mortality rate.

Before the war, the infant mortality rate in Germany was already high by American standards, with 64.1 children out of 1,000 dying in their first year, compared to 47 out of 1,000 in the United States.

In 1946, however, the rate climbed to 95.8 per 1,000 and in 1947, the last year for which figures are available, it was 84.8.

Never before has a car so dynamic been under such certain and easy control. The big, powerful hydraulic brakes are completely dominant—yet they are as soft to the pedal as sponge rubber. A touch from the daintiest foot—and the car settles down to a quick and easy stop. A touch on the accelerator, and it moves quickly into any position its driver wishes to occupy. The big, slender steering wheel is feather-light in the hand—and quick and positive in its action.

It's a great thrill to take command of such a car—as hundreds are learning every day. Why not come in and see for yourself? Regardless of the price class from which you expect your next car to come, you ought to be familiar with Cadillac. It is the final yardstick for measuring motor cars.

Ruhr Might Help Future World Peace

Statute Proposes Lengthy Control

ESSEN, GERMANY — (AP) — The Ruhr armed Germany for two world wars, but can it gird western Europe for peace?

Six foreign powers, including the United States, say the answer is: Yes.

They have drafted a statute for their control of this vital industrial territory — not for a year or two, but far into the future. They propose to distribute hereafter the Ruhr's multimillion-ton production of coal, coke and steel in Germany and the rest of Europe.

Their control authority — possibly including a future German government — is to work hand in hand with an allied military security board set up to prevent, perhaps forever, Germany's rearmament.

These are the essentials of the Ruhr statute announced in London last December. They are applauded generally in western Europe, since Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxemburg share with the United States in control powers, they are hissed by Russia, because she is completely excluded.

Elsewhere in Germany, politicians fume. Yet in the Ruhr itself, you encounter a curious apathy toward the statute among 6,300,000 people who are involuntarily committed to this gigantic economic experiment.

As marked off by the statute, the Ruhr has an area of about 7,700 square kilometers. Its dozen important industrial centers include Essen, Dortmund, Duisburg, Hamm, Gelsenkirchen, Wuppertal and Solingen. Their names have been blazoned in allied bombing reports and the history of Europe's industrial age.

The Ruhr is only 25 miles from Holland, 40 miles from Belgium, and 120 miles from France. Yet here the laborer now works longer, gets paid less, and exists incomparably worse than his foreign neighbors.

However, the Ruhr is busy, if not booming, by pre-war comparisons. Workers complain of a continued shortage of meat and fats, but there is plenty of bread and potatoes. A bare beginning has been made at erecting the 400,000 homes required for bombed-out workers. Stores have attractive, though high-priced, wares.

You find the Ruhr worker is even smiling again when he comes off his shift. Things are tough, but they were tougher last year, and much tougher the year before that. So he smiles. You might say the Ruhr statute will be a success, if it can keep him smiling.

The baby's brother is peeking over Miss Engle's shoulder, doubtless wondering when he's going to be called to the bar. Jeffreys is the author of two successful books, "The Fabulous Dutch Zellers" and "God Is My Landlord."

Bursts Into Tears; His Fine Suspended

CLEVELAND — (AP) — George Butler, 37, burst into tears yesterday when Municipal Judge Mary Grossman found him guilty of assaulting Joseph Horvath, 36, during an argument over a $200 bill due Butler for redecorating work.

"You are a big cry baby, but you have cried yourself out of this one," the judge said. She gave him a suspended fine.

School Committee Prepares Handbook for City Teachers

A guidance committee, made up of Mansfield teachers, has begun the preliminary work of preparing a handbook on mental hygiene for use in Mansfield schools.

The handbook will be turned over to teachers in public schools to assist them in handling guidance problems with pupils in their classes.

The committee, headed by John Stout of Senior high school, consists of a teacher representative from each of the Mansfield public schools.

A testing committee, made up of a similar group of teachers, now is setting up a schedule for giving achievement tests to students in Mansfield public schools this spring.

W. W. Blauser, principal of West Fifth street school, is chairman of the testing committee.

From:
Public Relations Department
Nash Motors, Detroit, Michigan.
Miami, Florida, February 25th, 1949.

"Cannon Ball" Baker, veteran automobile test driver, today established a 1949 stock car record run from Boston to Miami traversing 1595.1 miles at 26.5 miles per gallon of non-premium gasoline.

Designating the trip as a combined safety and economy run, Baker said that all local speed and traffic laws were observed. In the 11 states through which he passed, highway speed postings ranged from 10 m.p.h. in school zones, to the 60 m.p.h. on Florida highways, the highest speed permitted in any state on the Atlantic Seaboard.

Driving a stock 112 H.P. Nash Ambassador 4-door sedan equipped with automatic overdrive, Baker and two passengers left Boston February 22nd at 9:55 P.M. and arrived at Miami at 4:35 P.M., February 25th. The total elapsed time was less than three days. The actual running time of 43 hours 13 minutes averaged 36.9 per hour.

Baker declared that the high average speed for the entire trip through some of America's largest cities was established, despite strict adherence to all local traffic and public safety laws and adverse weather conditions encountered. The trip was made to demonstrate conclusively that it is not necessary to drive fast or recklessly in order "to make good time" on long trips.

Accompanying Baker were two passengers, Harry Stanton, well known Boston automotive editor acting as official observer, and a member of Nash Motors public relations staff.

All gasoline used during the run was regular non-premium fuel of various brands purchased at roadside service stations. To secure an exact measurement the fuel was measured into cans whose accuracy had been certified by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

TOTAL GASOLINE COST OF 1600 MILE TRIP WAS $15.30

Savings Up, Spending Cut In '48

Consumers Shift To Different Path

CHICAGO — (AP) — Consumers changed their spending and saving habits last year after four years in the same groove.

Maybe you hadn't noticed. But Margaret Reid, University of Illinois economist, did in looking over a survey of consumer finances sponsored by the federal reserve board.

She also found the rich and poor are richer while the in-betweens have relatively less wealth than before the war. Furthermore, she says, in recent years the rich are saving more year for year. But while the poor have relatively more money wealth, they are cutting deeper into their savings.

"For the first time since 1944," the economist notes in the university's business review, "the percentage of income spent last year declined as compared with the preceding year, and the percentage saved rose correspondingly."

This may signal the end of the special postwar spending boom, she says, but she finds that expenditures "are not far from what might be expected on the basis of prewar experience."

Spending began to lag behind income last year, increasing less than a given rise in income. This was similar to the pattern of the prewar years. Consumers put away about seven per cent of personal disposable income in 1948. This is higher than most prosperous years before the war, but still is a third below the 10.6 per cent saved in 1941.

In prewar years spending and income fluctuated closely together. Drops in income were accompanied by smaller drops in expenditures and rises in income by smaller rises in expenditures. The two always moved in the same direction.

But during the war there was an ever-widening gap between income and spending. Production for civilians fell off and retail shelves took on a bare look. The armed forces expanded and there was increased pressure to buy war bonds.

All these worked together to push civilian spending arther and farther behind the rise in income.

Then with the end of the war, production for civilians increased and spending rose even more sharply than income. In other words, many people dipped into their savings. This was especially ture in 1945 through 1947. Demobilization and the high birth rate added the demand for men's clothing, house furnishings, and many other goods to the large demand backlog for durable goods which civilians already had built up.

Increasing production and prices combined with pent-up demand to make consumer expenditures higher than ever before. Spending in 1947 was twice what it was in 1941. Prices were up about half, so the real volume of goods purchased was estimated at about a third higher.

Allowing for population growth, this meant a person averaged around a fourth more goods and services bought in 1947 than in the last prewar year. Then came 1948 and a restored interest in saving rather than spending.

Vet Farm Training Teacher Employed

William Wareham, of Shelby, has been employed to teach the veterans' farm training school at Lucas, County Supt. of Schools Boyd Robinson announced yesterday.

Wareham, who will begin his duties Monday, replaces Vance Clever, resigned. Clever, who has been handling the classes for a year said the press of other duties necessitated resigning from the school job.

Little Firm Has Big Job

NEW YORK —(AP)— Although the nation's rail shipments have been dropping, one specialized transportation company finds its business restricted only by a lack of steel to build more containers.

That is the L.C.L. Corporation of New York, which moves in its equipment nearly a million tons of material a year. It is one of the country's biggest "little companies," operating with a president and 10 employes.

"L.C.L." means "less carload lots," which, in turn, means the company has perfected methods of shipping bulk materials in less than railroad car lots.

The corporation's operations are relatively simple.

It has developed a number of different containers for rapid handling and transport of materials used in industry and construction. Each type of container is especially adapted to carry certain specific containers.

The containers, which the company owns by the thousands, are leased to the railroads under contract. The railroads supply them to shippers the same as freight cars.

Cameramen Study Television Technique

By HOWARD C. HEYN

The board of governors of the American Society of Cinematographers (ASC) has a committee studying equipment and techniques related to live television and television films.

Research projects include analyses to determine the best type of film for TV transmission, the best type of shots, the suitability of current lighting techniques, the extent to which fundamental motion picture theater film methods can be utilized, and the application of process photography (background projection) to live television.

It's a big order. Leading cinematographers compare the important role of electronic engineers in TV to that of sound technicians in movie studios 25 years ago, and to the part played more recently by chemists in adding color to motion pictures.

When sound came in, cameramen stood quietly by while sound technicians told them what could or could not be done in the new medium. After a few months of this, film producers realized they were no longer making motion pictures. At least, the result didn't move much, even if it sounded fine. When the cameramen had watched proceedings long enough to learn what changes in technique were necessary, they regained their important position in the process of making movies.

Quite a few cinematographers see a parallel in the present initial phase of television.

Cartoon Movie Maker Seeks World Opinion

HOLLYWOOD —(AP)— Walter Lantz, producer of cartoon movies, plans to tour most of the world to determine if theater audiences are sold on live action in combination with cartoon animation.

He wants to find out a few other things too, such as preference in story material. Many cartoons are based on folklore. But Lantz discovered, on a similar tour of the United States last year, that vast numbers of moviegoers like western cartoons.

Lantz started his tour with a trip to Hawaii. He will leave Hollywood again in April for England, France, Switzerland, Belgium, and the Scandinavian countries. Thereafter he will continue his survey in Mexico and in such South American cities as Rio de Janeiro. Buenos Aires, Lima and Santiago.

One of his questions will be: Do theater audiences like best feature-length or short cartoons? He wants to know before he makes a full-length Woody Woodpecker picture.

Finds Quick Method To Dispose of Snow

HOLLYWOOD — (AP) — Snow on ridges in the background threatened to ruin location scenes for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Border Incident," being photographed near the Mexican border. Ricardo Montalban and Howard da Silva were supposed to be engaged in mortal combat—in hot weather.

Director Anthony Mann thought he would have to abandon the location site until a studio painter, James Vesey, solved the problem. He sprayed the snow with an inflammable liquid, struck a match and melted the snow in half an hour.

"If we had used shovels on that snow, we'd be there yet," said Mann.

Film Bad Man Wins Praise From Bogart

HOLLYWOOD — (AP) — What one screen bad man thinks of flections of his voice and the Sessue Hayakawa is the most menacing film villain since Lon Chaney the elder. The Japanese actor, says Bogey, "has the wonderful ability to transmit a feeling of terror just by the inflections of his voice and the play of emotions across his mobile face." and thaf is quite a speech for Bogart.

Hayakawa, a star in silent picture days, plays a heavy in the Bogart film "Tokyo Joe," at Columbia. The part is Hayakawa's first in Hollywood in 16 years. He spent that period in Paris.

Tygers Rip Bucyrus '5', 68 to 46

Mansfield Ends Tourney on Top

with the rest of the Bengals in the second half and hit on only one of 11 attempts.

Senior high literally ran the Redmen off their feet, in building up a 15-to-3 lead. At one time in the space of a minute, Paul Ferguson ripped home two fast breaks and Norb Shibinski got one. The Tygers closed the quarters, leading 21-5.

McCally counted one of his long shots to open the second quarter and Big Paul Katterhenrich, 6-4 Bucyrus center, nabbed a free throw. Then Mansfield connected on 13 straight points to build the advantage to 36-6. At the half, the count stood at 42-10.

Right after the half, Senior high ran up a big 54-19 lead but trouble started. Ferguson and Ed Demyan each picked up his fourth foul and Hoffman broke up his starting five. Bucyrus closed out the period with six straight markers to slice the margin to 54-29.

Ferguson fouled out at 2:50 of the fourth quarter with Mansfield leading, 59 to 31. Bucyrus moved to 63-46 with one minute remaining but the Tygers picked up two more off fast breaks and added a free throw.

The Bengal foul shooting was also of the best. Mansfield made 20 of 28 free throws with Anderson hitting nine of 11. Bucyrus made only two of ten foul shots in the first half but finished the game with 14 of 26.

Bucyrus connected on 16 of 69 shots from the court but many of the "throws" were of the desperation variety as the Bengal defense left little to be desired.

Senior high has now won 16 of 23 games and 22 of its last 23 contests in the Tyger lair.

None of the Tyger starters could get a corner on the scoring mart as Demyan and McCally led the parade with 15 apiece. Anderson had 13 and Shibinski and Ferguson 11.

Average Car 9 Years Old

As of Dec 31, 1948, the average age of passenger cars on the nation's highways was 9.3 years and of trucks 8.0 years, R. L. Polk & Co., statisticians to the automotive industry, estimated Saturday.

The average mileage on the nation's automobiles is about 65,000 miles, on the supposition that the average car owner drives 7,000 miles a year, Polk officials said.

The calculation of average age is based on the assumption that 1948 model vehicles, shown on the U. S. summary compiled as of July 1, 1948, were six months old as of Dec. 31. All 1947 models were assumed to be 18 months old. In other words, it was assumed that the "average" car is "born" on July 1 annually.

Statisticians have pointed out that in spite of the fact that 4,500,000 new motor vehicles were registered in 1948, the number of new vehicles manufactured is only a small percentage of the total of 36,573,000 passenger cars and trucks now licensed to operate on the nation's roads. The total new car and truck registrations since 1946 has been only 11,121,000. This means that less than one third of all cars on the road are post-war models.

With two-thirds of the nation still driving pre-war models, the servicing of these older vehicles should enable car and truck service operations to continue at high levels, it was pointed out. Many car owners have been unable to purchase new cars because of current prices, it was said, although most of them would normally not purchase a new car but a newer used car.

More cars of 1941 vintage are registered than any other year—slightly more than four million. Second greatest number of cars of any one year's make are 1937 models, with 1947 models third.

Germany's Production Tops Goal

Western Zone Industries Hum

Industrial production already has roared past the target set for June, 1949.

German coal miners are setting new production records even as the communists strive to stir resentment against the allies in the Ruhr.

German goods are flowing into world markets at the rate of about $800,000,000 a year—four times what they were a year ago.

Imports purchased from the proceeds of German exports are running well over $400,000,000 a year or about seven times what they were in 1947.

The German people have what some areas in the world still do not have—a stable currency. American officials say the German deutsche mark compares favorably in buying power with the Swiss franc, one of Europe's soundest currencies.

This is the positive side of the western German recovery picture. But American officials are pounding home to the Germans the prodigious problems that lie ahead of them.

Gen. Lucius D. Clay, the American military governor, says:

"There is still a long road ahead to self-sufficiency.

"The deficit between imports essential to life and exports being borne by the United States during the present fiscal year (ending June 30) exceeds $1,000,000,000. While this deficit will be substantially less during the next fiscal year, there will remain a large deficit for several years."

Warm Spell Brings Fires

That balmy weather yesterday brought along with it a number of grass fires. There were four, including one at the Madison high school field, south of the school. There was no damage from any of the fires, firemen said.

The first call came at 11:15 a. m. when firemen from central station went to a lot at 279 Sheridan avenue, owned by J. M. Kennedy. Then, at 2.20 p. m. Company No. 2 answered a call to a lot on John Long avenue.

The Madison school grass fire at 3:30 p. m. was put out by Central station firemen while another company from the same station, using the No. 6 pumper truck, went to Trimble road and Fairfax avenue at 5 p. m. The grass fire there was almost out when they arrived, the firemen said.

Sleeping Tablet Prevents Suicide

After writing a suicide note and taking the tablet, she walked to a bridge, 40 feet above railroad tracks. Then she fell asleep beside the bridge railing, Deputy Sheriff Otis Crane reported.

She was found unconscious by two boys.

Charged After Flourishing Antique Gun

Richard W. Lambrecht, 37, of Loudonville, who flourished an antique Colt gun of the type used in the 1800's at the DAV bingo game at Fifth and Mulberry streets Friday night was charged with disorderly conduct, police said last night.

Police said the gun was of the type that is loaded with powder through the muzzle and takes a cap and that the offender had none of that equipment with him, which accounts for filing the disorderly conduct charge instead of a carrying concealed weapons charge.

Drivers Must Renew Licenses or Take Test

Drivers who failed to renew their drivers' licenses in September must get them by March 31 or take a driver's test to qualify for new permits, the state highway patrol said yesterday. The patrol conducts the tests.

INTRUDER BREAKS IN

Someone broke into the Economy Coal company office, 36 West Surry road, late Friday or early Saturday, Henry Bertka reported to police. He said nothing was missing and that entrance was gained by the glass window in the rear door.

Two Charged In Mishaps

Two men were charged with unsafe operation last night after their cars were involved in accidents, police reported.

Clinton Crawford, of 33 East Second street, was charged by police after his car struck a city bus parked at the bus stop on North Park street at 8 p. m. last night. Harvey H. Solomon, of 117 Willow street, was the bus driver.

The other man charged was Jack C. McMullen, 24, of 250 Chester avenue, after his car struck that of Raymond E. Hord, Bucyrus, on North Mulberry street near Fifth street.

Police said the McMullen car struck the Hord car from the rear after Hord had stopped for an ambulance. The accident occurred about 9:30 p. m.

Two Found Dead In Concrete Pit

CINCINNATI — (AP) — Two transients were found dead yesterday in a concrete pit which they had covered with canvas after they built a fire to keep them warm during the night.

Papers found in their pockets indicated the men were Elijah Moore Beale, 48, of Baltimore, Md.; and Albert Lee, 43, of Jellico, Tenn.

Bribe Offer Revealed By Sheriff

Call Follows Vice Expose

CANTON — (AP) — The Stark county sheriff yesterday reported receipt of a bribe offer. At the same time, the county prosecutor said no one had presented him with evidence of vice and crime conditions in neighboring Alliance.

Sheriff Harry W. Grossglaus said a telephone call by an unknown man offered him $10,000 and his choice of a new automobile.

The sheriff said the proposition apparently was an attempt to induce him to "play ball" with the county's gambling operators.

Grossglaus quoted the man as saying:

"I'm speaking for a friend of mine who wants to be friendly with you and for this friendship he is willing to give you a new car of your own choosing and a gift of $10,000."

The sheriff said he told the man:

"I want no part of it or him."

Grossglaus said he thought he knew the caller's name but explained a charge would be difficult to prove with only a telephone call to back up his statement.

Prosecutor D. Deane McLaughlin reported the Alliance Ministerial association had not approached him with a suggestion for a grand jury investigation of conditions in that city. A regular grand jury session opens here Monday.

"Any time evidence of felonies is presented to me by responsible persons, there will be a grand jury investigation," McLaughlin said.

"I will not act upon nor burden the grand jury with rumors or suppositions," he added.

McLaughlin's statement followed a commendation by the Alliance Ministerial association of stories in a Cleveland paper of vice conditions in Alliance.

Clubs Plan Celebration

The Employed Girls club of the Mansfield YWCA will join similar groups in other YWCA's this month in celebrating the 22nd anniversary of world wide recognition of business and professional girls in the YWCA.

The anniversary will be celebrated by 60,000 business and professional members in this country and in many of the 69 foreign countries where the YWCA is active.

The first of the special events in Mansfield this month will be the showing of a movie, "The Brotherhood of Man," at the March 9 meeting of the Employed Girls club. Members of the club will participate in special packing clothes and remolding projects this month including used candles to be sent overseas through the YWCA Emergency War Fund. The observance will be climaxed with a dinner at the Mayflower Congregational church March 30.

Miss Dorothy Bacquet is chairman of the observance for the Employed Girls club here. Her planning committee includes Misses Helen Packman, Addis Adams, and Lola Marth.

The Employed Girls club meets at the YWCA every Wednesday at 7 p. m. The meetings are open to all employed girls in Mansfield.

Homemakers Unit Elects

Ruth Hagerman will head the newly-reorganized Future Homemakers 4-H club. She was elected president at a recent meeting held at the home of Mrs. Harold Tingley, Piper road.

Other new officers include Ruth Cassler, vice president; Marilyn Wheaton, secretary; Norma Bishop corresponding secretary; Carrol Tingley, treasurer; Mary Hill, news reporter; Mrs. Norma Wilson, chaplain; and Mrs. Margaret Hill, recreation leader.

The next meeting will be held March 10 at the home of Mrs. Norma Wilson, 48 Mansfield avenue.

It takes about a year from the time a sow is bred until the pig is marketed at 225 pounds.

Mansfield's New Citizens

Family Fled to Escape Russian Terror

Last Nov. 4, Lydia Clausser Bambach (Mrs. Philip Bambach, 360 Second avenue) celebrated her flight from Russia 40 years before by becoming a citizen of the United States.

She recalls her vivid childhood reaction to her father's unexplained absence from home long before her mother gathered her three sisters and brothers and started for America. Then, she remembers the unbounded joy at seeing her father waiting for his family in Chicago.

The Clausser family were among the hundreds of Germans who had settled the wheat fields of Russia some 200 years before. The father, a miller, processed his wheat into grain on a miller's stone wheel, operated by the power given by a water mill fed from the Volga river.

"The water mill and the orchard and a beautiful wind mill are my most vivid recollections of Russia," Mrs. Bambach began.

It may have been water rights on the Volga which caused the father to "get in trouble with the government," Mrs. Bambach doesn't know. All she remembers is that her father disappeared. "Of course, my mother knew that father had come to America, but it wasn't safe for any of the neighbors to know."

If word had reached the officials that the father had fled, the family would probably have been persecuted by the dread Cossacks. "The very mention of Cossacks terrified even the children in Russia," Mrs. Bambach continued. "I remember how we wouldn't be allowed to burn the lamps or to appear outside the house after dusk when the Cossacks were in the vicinity. It was firmly instilled in the children that it was just 'too bad' if the Cossacks caught you on the street."

Mrs. Bambach as a child lived in the Russo-German community of Dobrinka. Although she maintains that the "only good thing about the true Russians" was their spongy white bread, her childhood was not completely devoid of pleasant memories.

She remembers wading in the Volga in the summer when the supply boat would tour the Volga—only means of transportation in that section of Russia. In winter, horse-drawn sleighs replaced the boats and travel was carried on over the frozen Volga.

Mrs. Bambach remarked gratefully that Mansfield's recent mild winter was "certainly different from the Russian winters where snow fell early in September and never melted until March."

HAS NO REGRETS

The genial woman has no nostalgia for the land of her birth. She remembers too well the mysterious disappearance of her mother's step-sister and her family in the "wholesale purge" by the Russians within the country after the first World War.

"The Russians purged the Germans in Russia after the first World War just as they're doing in the slavic countries today."

After her marriage at 17 to Bambach in Chicago, Mrs. Bambach volunteered her time as a social worker with the United Charities. She became one of their most valuable workers principally because she could speak both English and German fluently. Social work is still her hobby. As she explains it:

"I am a conscientious objector. I do not believe we should take up arms. That is why I didn't get my papers until recently when the law was changed. But I do believe that everyone should take an interest in their community and help where help is needed. I receive a blessing from doing such work."

Thereupon hangs another story of Mrs. Bambach's life. In 1935, when she came to Mansfield to join her husband, she learned of twin babies, left without a mother in Canada. Word of the plight of the infant girls had been spread in the Apostolic Christian church congregation here to which the Bambachs belong.

"There was no question about it. My husband and I decided that we'd take one of the babies. We had never had children of our own and although we didn't feel we were financially able to cake care for both children, we could help out."

But the trouble of getting Canadian-born infants into the country to be adopted by noncitizens had not been reckoned with by the Bambachs. It took four months of help from local authorities and research on the laws to bring the babies here.

When they arrived, the Otto Mueller family, then living on Cherry street, took one of the babies. Mrs. Bambach proudly presented a family portrait. The Bambach twin, named Carol Ann, and almost 14 years, bears more than a striking resemblance to both parents.

"And the sister, Barbara Ann Mueller, is almost a head shorter and has blonde hair and blue eyes, fitting in with her adopted family. You see that this was a definite answer to a definite prayer."

NO COSSACKS HERE—Thousands of miles away Russia and its persecution, Mrs. Lydia Bambach relaxes in her pleasant home with her sewing basket. She followed her father to America at the age of eight after the parent had fled persecution of the government. Relaxation Of Controls Wins Praise

Seen as Aid For Merchants

Relaxation of controls on installment buying, which becomes effective Monday, was seen Saturday by Mansfield merchants as "a shot in the arm" for business.

They agreed the government's move to slice the down payment requirements on a number of items and to allow a longer period for payments might bring an increase in sales.

The order reduces the minimum 20 per cent down payment on controlled items to 15 per cent, with the exception of automobiles, on which minimum remains at 33 1-3 per cent. Secondly, the order increases the installment payment period from 15 months to 21 months. This change does include automobiles.

Controlled items includes cook stoves, dishwashers, ironers, refrigerators, washing machines, air conditioners, radio and television sets, phonographs, sewing machines, vacuum cleaners, furniture and rugs.

V. H. Lodde, secretary-manager of the Retail Merchants association, said he felt the relaxation was "a good thing."

"Naturally, it will assist dealers in those items since both down payments and the monthly payments will be less," Loddie said. "It will assist retailers in selling more appliances, and in the long run will help industry."

Another merchant who asked that his name not be used, said "the concensus is that the relaxation in installment buying curbs will stimulate business."

He declared there was nothing outstanding about the new order, but added that inasmuch as purchasing power has been restricted due to lack of overtime pay, business would be aided.

A. M. Colby, of Colby and Earick, Inc., asked about the possible effect on car sales, said: "I think it will have a good effect on used car sales, but not such a marked effect on new car sales."

There are hundreds of species of "solitary" wasps which do not live in communities.

Pledge of Allegiance to Flag

"I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands, one Nation indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

From Molotov to Vishinsky

SO LITTLE is known about internal conditions in Russia that it seems useless to speculate on the meaning of the latest move, in which Andrei Y. Vishinsky succeeds Vyacheslav M. Molotov as foreign minister.

Vishinsky has been the "front man" for Russia in obstructing the United Nations program, and, in the absence of information to the contrary, it may be assumed that this will continue to be his policy.

Any surmises, however, that this change indicates intention by Russia to put heat into the present "cold war" evidence the jittery state to which many people have been brought by the emphasis that has been placed on the possibility of an aggressive move by Soviet leaders against the proposed union of western democracies.

It may be taken for granted that in the position of foreign minister, either Molotov or Vishinsky merely reflect the views of the Russian hierarchy and no evidence is at hand to indicate a change, other than in personnel.

Red Cross Campaign Shouldn't Lag

AS THE Richland County Red Cross drive for $48,835 passes from its initial days into its middle phase, more responsibility falls upon the campaign workers. There is no longer the natural enthusiasm which marks the opening of any campaign. Nor has the "big push" yet begun which usually is characteristic of the wind-up.

Now is the time when solicitors must make it their own job to keep things rolling.

This is the best opportunity to concentrate on persons on your list who, because of the nature of their work, may be difficult to reach. It is also the ideal time to talk with those who want to think over the size of their contribution.

Of course, at all times the importance of the work of the Red Cross must be kept uppermost in mind. The drive is on now for funds. But it is the work this money can do when properly managed that counts.

Police Officers Do Their Work Well

SOMETIMES little things count for a great deal. For example, a Mansfielder reports that he recently had occasion to call the police department when he noticed a large light burning in an upstairs room at the home of neighbors who were away on an extended trip.

The man was impressed with the promptness with which the police answered his call. They were on hand in a matter of minutes. He was further impressed by the care with which they entered the home and the thorough check they made of the entire house to make sure that the burning light did not indicate prowlers had entered the place after the owners left.

"After seeing those patrolmen work," he remarked, "I cannot help but feel that Mansfield's individual policemen are a lot better trained and a lot more conscientious than many of us realize."

His compliment was directed at the men who, though they cannot make the policies of the police department, must do the actual work.

Communist Agitator Troubles France

FRANCE is having troubles with communist leaders.

There the communists have been a recognized and active political party, with sufficient legislative strength to affect the balance of power in parliament. The party has been accepted as a normal and proper element in the French political system.

Troubles have arisen over public statements by Maurice Thorez, leader of the Communist party in France, which border on treason. In the storm of antagonism aroused among other parties, the statements of Thorez have been interpreted as an attempt to incite French people to side with Russia, against their own country, if there were war between the two nations.

There is similarity between the French problem and that presented by communists in the United States. The problem arises over the question of ties between communists and Russia, and whether in a show-down their loyalty would be to their own country or to the Soviet Union.

It may be this question which essentially sets communists off from other political groups. Certainly it is an important part of the difference between communists and others. At least until the question is satisfactorily answered there seems to be justice, and good sense, in regarding communists as different from other political adherents. The French may be approaching a similar conclusion.

Which Is Really the 'Weaker Sex'?

THE NEXT time the man of the house is flexing his muscles in front of the mirror, it might be well to present to him a copy of the report of the Coronary Research Project at Massachusetts General hospital. It says:

"Available evidence indicates that there is an inherent weakness in the male, a sex-limited inferiority, so that by comparison with the female he is, actuarially speaking, a weakling at all periods of life."

There are facts and figures, lots of them. But who wants to read them? For women readers, they would just be a repetition of knowledge already held. For men, the figures would be dry and distasteful and the facts of dubious validity.

In all probability, the public error in the identity of the weaker sex will not be rectified by this report.

Radar Used To Discourage Speeders

RADAR is coming into use to curb speeders. Garden City, Long Island, has a police car equipped with radar which keeps tab on a suspected car, keeps it in the radar path and notes the speed with a radar-actuated pen.

Then if a driver says "How did you know that I was going that fast?", the police department can tell him, and produce a scientific record in proof.

Claude Callan remembers: "People used to look down on the woman in the old home town who got drunk. She didn't know enough to fix up her drinks so she could call them cocktails."

By LOUIS BROMFIELD

THERE is a new play in New York called "Death of a Salesman." It is a sensational success, although it is essentially a tragic play about drab people. On the opening night the audience refused to go home. I have not seen the play, but I mean to do so the first time I am in New York. Apparently, it is a well constructed play and is staged, directed and cast to perfection. All of these things have been true of other plays received by the public with far less enthusiasm. Therefore, I do not believe these are the reasons for its immense success.

BROMFIELD

I think the reason is that Arthur Miller, the author, has touched and exploited clearly a tragedy which touches not only the salesman and those in his immediate family, but in one way or another the greater part of the American people and the reasons for their failures in living—failures which are both spiritual and material. The American audience on the opening night recognized this instinctively and at once.

The failure of the salesman in the play (who, in the end, kills himself) is a failure of direction and of values in living. Briefly, he became a salesman simply because it seemed to be a way of making a living. For 30 years he kidded himself and sometimes his employers kidded him into believing that he was important.

Then one day he found out that, despite the fact that he had a good and faithful wife and two healthy sons, his lack of direction and sense of real values in living had corrupted the whole of his family.

They were drab, second-rate and had no direction to their lives. He found out that he wasn't needed in the world or in his family or in his business. The disillusionment was too great to be borne, so he finished himself off.

The point is that the salesman's story up to the suicide is the story of far too many men and their families in this great United States.

Quite simply it is the failure of the man who has no real purpose in living, never knows what he wants to do, and works not for the satisfaction and pleasure he finds in his work but just to earn enough to live on. It is the failure of all those people who think that success and satisfaction are a matter of "breaks."

I doubt that any word gets harder or more false usage than the word "breaks." How many thousand Americans say every day that they haven't gotten along because they didn't get the "breaks" the other fellows had?

How many farmers do you hear say they haven't done so well because they didn't have the luck of the prosperous and happy farmer next door.

* * *

Destructive Philosophy.

THE philosophy of "breaks" is the most destructive element in American living. It is always the excuse of the mediocre, the failure, the men and women who are kidding themselves. Barring accident and illness (and sometimes even this exception does not hold), there are no such things as "breaks" in the sense of luck.

The failure of most people arises from the fact that they do not know what they want to do, that whatever they do, they do in a half-hearted way, and often enough they actually hate their work.

This is an important point and it involves much more than the mere fact that no man or woman who disliked his work or was indifferent to it ever attained material success. It involves the question of personal satisfaction and pleasure in living.

A cobbler, who is an artist at cobbling and loves his work, is much better off than the man with two cars in the garage, who is just making a living because he has to work at something.

What's more, the cobbler will have his work and find pleasure and satisfaction in living long after the man with two cars probably has lost his job, and reached middle or old age with no place to go and nothing to do but play the pinball machine.

I have lived long enough to have known a great many young men who have announced that they had one goal in life—to make money. And I have lived long enough to see everyone of them fail. I have seen them fail and turn into snivelling specimens. They ended up complaining that they, too, could have been successful if they had had the "breaks".

Of course, that isn't the answer at all. It is that they had no direction, no plan, no sense of values and they were creating nothing.

I once had a remarkable conversation with Henry Ford on this subject. He said, "I never in my life did anything 'to make money.' I wanted to invent a horseless buggy and I did it. I wanted to create a good car that nearly everyone could afford to own, and I did it. You couldn't keep the money away and the greatest pleasure I have had was never derived from accumulating all the money, but from succeeding in creating what I attempted to create."

Henry Ford had his faults, but he happened to be that rare thing—an inventor who was also an excellent and somewhat ruthless businessman. Yet I can see no reason to question the motivation of his career or many others like him. Even the professional gambler gambles because he likes it and finds pleasure in it.

The man who knows what he wants to do and likes his work never watches the clock. He never needs any holiday, for every day of the year he is doing what he wants most to do—whether it be cobbling a shoe, painting a picture or building a great industry or bank.

That is the secret which eludes too many of us—to the very end. It is far better to be the enthusiastic expert cobbler than the half-hearted professional man with a college degree—not only in the spiritual sense, but often enough, in the end, in the material sense as well. There are no "breaks" except as we make them ourselves.

The genius of the author of "The Death of a Salesman" is that he discovered the basic tragedy and interest in the lives of people who otherwise would have been dull, uninteresting and dreary. It is far more An American Tragedy than the material of Dreiser's book by that name.

Ruhr Is Eased Back Into Cartel Control

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — It's been squeezed off the front papers by other news, but certain things have been transpiring in Germany that may someday affect every U. S. citizen qualified to carry a gun. The German Ruhr, from which sprang two world wars, is gradually easing back into the control of some of the big German cartelists who build up Hitler's war machine. Twelve Germans have just been nominated to control the Ruhr steel industry, despite the bitter protests of German labor unions and the liberal political parties now struggling against German communism.

PEARSON

The man who selected the Ruhr cartelists — Dr. Herman Puender—is, himself, interesting. When Hitler first threatened to come into power, Puender was an adviser to Chancellor Bruening, the last Democratic leader of Germany, and wrote a confidential memo advising Bruening not to oppose Hitler too vigorously.

After the war started, Puender served as lieutenant colonel in Div. III, H., Abwehr of OKH, which made him the German equivalent of a Soviet political commissar.

For the ABWEHR was in charge of "morale and ideology" and had the job of suppressing Anglo - American propaganda in the nazi ground forces.

It is this onetime trusted servant of Adolf Hitler who has now been permitted to choose the German steel barons who are to govern the vital industry of the Ruhr.

* * *

U. S. Steel In Ruhr.

THE MAN who helped set up this plan, Undersecretary of the Army William Draper, was a member of the Wall Street firm of Dillon, Read, which loaned millions to this very same German steel industry prior to World War II. Without these millions, Hitler probably could not have started war when he did.

Draper has now departed the Washington scene to rejoin Dillon, Read. And his banking partner, James Forrestal, who also helped loan money to the steel cartels, is on his way out as secretary of national defense.

These men justify the juggernaut they leave behind to govern the Ruhr on the ground that a committee of allied steel moguls will supervise the 12 German cartelists.

However, let's take a careful look at this committee. The American members are: William J. Brinkerhoff, Werner P. Neumann, Ronald Clark and Ian F. L. Elliot, all of the U. S. Steel corporation, together with Frederick M. Dillies of Inland Steel.

To get their full background, you have to look at the files of the justice department regarding U. S. Steel's secret conversations with the nazis prior to the war. Especially important is one of the gentlemen on the above Ruhr committee, Ian F. L. Elliot.

For the U. S. Steel Corporation and other big American steel companies were playing hand-in-glove with the European steel cartel, including the nazis, prior to the war, and Mr. Elliot was the chief go-between in organizing the deal.

* * *

Secret Steel Deal.

ALL THIS remained secret until the U. S. Army got into Luxembourg and took over the files of the steel cartel. At that time the justice department got its first good look at what the barons of the American steel industry had been doing with the nazis right up to the war. A total of 4,000 documents were seized, showing that during 1938-39 various secret meetings were held in London, Paris and Luxembourg to organize a world steel cartel.

The American representatives for this deal were none other than Tom Girdler of Republic Steel, who has had a virtual pipeline in to Harry Truman through Truman's close friend, George Allen; Eugene Grace of Bethlehem Steel, and Ben Fairless of U. S. Steel, the company which now supplies four of the men supposed to keep an eye on the Ruhr.

The nazis were represented at these secret meeting by Ernst Poensgen, head of the nazi steel cartel; the British by Sir Andrew Duncan of the British Iron and Steel Federation; and the French by Pierre Pucheu and Humbert Wendell of Wendell and Laurent.

The European manager for the U. S. Steel Corporation and the chief go-between for both the British and the American was Ian Elliott, who now sits on the board of governors for the Ruhr.

During the dates when this deal was organized — 1938-39— Hitler had already marched into Czechoslovakia and was greedily eyeing Poland. American correspondents in Europe were constantly warning of war, and this columnist had categorically predicted it.

* * *

Feared Justice Department.

DESPITE this, the biggest leaders of American steel worked out a deal whereby they would not compete with Germany, though they admitted they could not control "little steel" in this country.

Significantly, also, they refused to sign a written cartel agreement on the ground that they might incur justice department prosecution. Instead, they entered a "gentleman's" oral agreement which they said would be just as binding as a written contract.

Today, therefore, control of Ruhr steel, the key to war in Europe, will be under twelve German cartelists picked by a former nazi officer, and under the supervision of four U. S. steel men whose boss made a secret deal with the nazis even while Hitler was waving the big stick over Czechoslovakia and Poland.

Note — It was Herbert Hoover, requested by Truman to make a European survey who first effectively urged the rebuilding of heavy industries in the Ruhr.

DALLAS, Texas —Honey, this is purely a big state where people talk big, think big and act big. That much I have got the hang of since I've been down hyah. I know it won't hardly seem possible to li'l ol' po' folks from up no'th, but big-hearted Dallas is going to share the Texas riches this coming summer by giving away a million dollars. The Queen City (Dallas, that is) is purely fed up with those itty-bitty Yankee giveaway quiz programs where an underprivileged contestant picks up mere jingling money like $30,000 for working himself to the bone by spelling his own name correctly from coast-to-coast.

INEZ ROBB

So Dallas is organizing a Texas-size giveaway quiz program to end all quiz giveaways. The community is shoving $1,000,000 in the kitty, hiring the Cotton Bowl for the event and wooing Groucho Marx as M.C.

They figger the quiz will run six nights a week for a minimum of four and a maximum of six to eight weeks in June and July. And maybe August, if the contestants are right stupid or excited.

After all, if'n a man is the nervous type, he may not even be able to spell his own name correctly if he is straining for the top prize, which will be a producing oil well.

Yessir, I said a producing oil well. Do things in a big way down hyah.

Other top prizes in this rich man's giveaway will be a herd of white face cattle (fifty Herford cows and a Taixas bull), some ranches (3,000 acres or better to open), a careless number of cotton farms and life insurance annuities.

If some little lady can tell the exact number or states in the union, she will go home, like-as-not, with one limousine, one station wagon, one convertible, one truck and a tractor, in case she has a garden to plow.

North of the Red River, this would all sound fantastic, incredible and a touch screwy. But that is the way with so many realities in Texas.

This big giveaway was devised when a group of civic leaders was trying to solve two problems: One, how to give substantial support to the Variety clubs' boys ranch and, two, how to attract visitors to Dallas in summer, when it gets a mite hot here even for old timers.

* * *

How It'll Be Done.

LIKE a true gentleman and a Texan, Dallas-born Lee Segall came up with the big idea for an out-sized quiz show to be held in the Cotton Bowl, which seats 67,000 persons.

The idea was sufficiently big and outlandish to appeal to the group which includes R. L. Thornton, president of the Mercantile National Bank; Sam R. Bloom, advertising manager of the Dallas Times Herald; Julius Schepps, who shepherds the Variety club, Bob O'Donnell of the Interstate Theatres chain, and Segall.

Segall and his associates believe they will be able to fill the Cotton Bowl night after night for weeks or until the oil wells and the herds of cattle run out. They plan to charge one dollar admission, plus federal tax.

Each person entering the Cotton Bowl will get a "brain check" with a number. A duplicate of that number will go into a big hopper.

Fifty or sixty persons with portable mikes will be spotted throughout the bowl, johnny-on-the-spot to grab any person whose number is drawn from the hopper.

Once the oil-well or $64,000 question has been asked the victim, earmuffs will be clapped over his ears, lest the audience coach him. All lights in the stadium will go out.

There will be tense seconds while Cinderellas of both sexes struggle for the right answer.

Segall figures the boys ranch at Copperas Cove, Texas, similar to famed Boys Town, ought to be enriched by $500,000 to $1,000,000 by the colossal quiz show.

Can you name a state with delusions of grandeur? (no coaching, please!)

Dare To Blunder!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

I'M NOT much for these cautious tabbies who are afraid of taking a new step for fear there may be consequences. I don't agree with the prudent Priscillas who have to look a lady bug in the eye ten times before spitting.

Of course it's every man to his own taste but I'm for paprika in mine. I like life hot and sunny and full of pep. I don't believe in going around acting like the Son of India, or a Texas longhorn or showing off your latest mail order sport clothes. That's phoney any time anywhere. But I do ℅believe in taking life in stride.

As far as we know we have only this one life to live at this particular time. Then live it as if you loved it. Live it as if every minute was full of strong, deep curiosity and zest for the next adventure. Live it with all you have of love and courage and eagerness to be up and attem.

Of course you're bound to make some blunders. You're bound to be criticized and ridiculed and you're bound to have enemies trailing after you if you follow my procedure. But take a chance. Follow it anyway. At least you will know you have lived.

You won't feel like a bit of parlor fluff. You'll have earned your title of a full grown man or woman. You'll have kept the flame going that our fathers fought so hard to light and to hold aloft.

And even if you don't take part in dashing adventures or romantic escapades, you will have earned your right to take your place in the great pageant of humanity, in the parade of those who matched their muscles and faith and wit and fighting fists against the cruelty and savagery of the jungle world.

I love people who live eagerly.

I love people who live as if the next second were to be their last.

Dare to blunder! Dare to blunder even if you know beforehand that it will mean anguish and misery and heavy penalties at times.

Dare to gamble with your heart's pure gold even though you know the price you'll have to pay.

Reckless policy? Possibly. But many a grand gentleman and lady led the long trail ahead that served and saved Christendom from the ruthless hands of savages.

It Says Here:

—By KEN WOODMAN

THAT STORY about the Canadian who claims to have invented a carburetor that will make any automobile travel 175 miles on a gallon of gasoline is fascinating because it seems to be a recurrent one.

* * *

Last summer a version of it was being passed around in which a certain automobile manufacturer was reported to have inadvertently released to the public a number of cars equipped with such a carburetor for testing. As the story went, tracers were sent out and the car owners given new "regular" carburetors plus a cash bonus "for their trouble."

* * *

The whole story, of course, may be fantastic. Or, it may be that a real device for more economical use of gasoline has been perfected. If so, the public is not going to be very docile if it finds out the gadget is being purposely withheld from the market.

As Others See It

Similarity Seen.

Overheard on the bus: "He has an open fireplace and a wife, both of which smoke all the time."—Ohio State Journal.

Sounds Improbable.

State Rep. John L. Smith wants all new laws written in precise, everyday English so as to be easily understood. That seems like a good idea, even if it means someone besides lawyers has to write them.—Ohio State Journal.

ODD FACT

Hypnotism has been known for centuries to the Persian magi and Indian yogis, and fakirs, among others.

Dave Boone Says:

THE Marshall Plan is just "a Wall Street scheme." The western alliance for our own defense is "a Wall Street scheme." And if the country finds itself at grips with an enemy and fighting for life—that, too, will be "a Wall Street scheme." The communist leaders of America have so stated.

* * *

And in their official statement they say the communists in this country would never be on our side in a war unless they approved, endorsed and certified it. Well, Uncle Sam can never say he wasn't warned.

* * *

The statement, which has to be read to be believed, says it is America and not Russia which is warlike. It is America, not Russia, which "is intervening" in Canada, Iran, Greenland, Brazil, Greece, France and Italy," it declares. No mention is made of Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Rumania or Poland. And Russia doesn't know a thing about what's been going on in China.

More Laughter

—BY ANNE CAMPBELL

Let's have a little laughter,
And less of pain and tears.
The time that follows after
May seem like empty years.

Let's prize each day, and borrow
No clouds from any past.
Let's gladly hail tomorrow,
For woes can never last.

Let's bear our present trouble,
And bravely looking toward
A better day, pay double
In tribute to the Lord.

Let's know His hand will guide us;
He marks our present plight,
And He will walk beside us,
To give us dawn for night!

Real Estate Check Nears In Morrow

12 Appraisers Get Instructions

By TERRY GRIFFITH
N-J State Correspondent

MT. GILEAD — Twelve Morrow county men met last week with County Auditor Harold Taylor to receive instructions and discuss details of the 1949 real estate appraisal. The appraisal is scheduled to start April 1.

The 12 who will make the appraisal were given instructions in modern appraisal methods.

When the work is completed all real estate owners in the county at stated times, will be given the opportunity to ascertain their final real estate values for tax purposes according to Taylor.

Taylor said the appraisers were instructed the entire problem was one of equalization. He also stated present values were considered abnormal and the attempt should be to bring about the equalization on a 1941 basis.

The work is being done this year to comply with the Ohio law which requires all county auditors to make a new appraisal once in every six years.

Sewer Contracts Awarded In Shelby

SHELBY — Contracts were awarded for the construction of three sanitary sewers, Mayor William Morris announced yesterday.

Gilbert Scott, local contractor who had submitted low bids on all three of the jobs was the recipient of the contracts.

Included are sanitary sewers for Woodlans Acres with a bid of $5,320.20; Park Ave., with a bid of $2,095 and an alternate bid of $1,745 if Scott is permitted to remove the dirt on the hill and Walnut Street, with a bid of $2,088.80 (this covers the south end of Walnut).

There still are two other sewer constructions to be considered. Bids on the sanitary sewer for North Gamble street were rejected because the bids exceeded the engineer's estimate by five percent. No decision has been reached on the Waldruff addition.

Gum Chewing Platform Wins

Pupils Run Butler School On Friday

BUTLER—Democracy day was observed in the local high school Friday. A 13-point platform swept Reformers party candidates into administrative and teaching posts for the day as faculty members took back seats.

The platform advocated gum chewing, required teachers to join the waiting line at the dining room and sit with the student body rather than at special tables and permitted pupils to wear anything they wish.

Other platform points included the issuance of hall passes without embarrassing questions, regular order in the halls with shouting prohibited, depositing paper in waste baskets, punishment for pupils charged with infractions to be determined by a committee of five appointed by the student council.

Earlier in the week the student council sponsored elections in the high school grades between Reformers and Liberalist party candidates on an electoral college system patterned after the federal set-up in selecting top executives.

The lion-emblemed Reformers polled 13 electoral votes, of a possible 16, and carried all grades with the exception of the 13th. The bulldog - emblemed Liberalists went down to defeat despite a gum chewing provision in their platform.

The Friday-only administrative force found Elizabeth Ward serving as superintendent and Eldon (Pete) Koppert as high school principal. The losing candidates were Kenneth Bookman as superintendent and Marion Oswalt as principal. Just for the record it should be noted E. R. Garverick is Butler school superintendent and W. C. Hanson high school principal all other days of the school year.

Faculty members nominated two pupils from each class, one to each party, to serve as substitute teachers Friday. A one act play, "Mrs. O'Leary's Cow," concluded the Democracy day activities. It was presented by a cast of eight from Robert Arnold's speech class and was directed by the instructor.

Student administrators took over the high school reins at 9 a. m. Friday. A few of the tasks Elizabeth had to perform as superintendent were the writing of checks and receipts, making announcements at assembly, going after mail and assisting any teacher who needed help or whenever difficulties arose.

Some of the tasks confronting Koppert, in his role as principal, were the making out of excuse slips, checking absences and assisting the superintendent in maintaining discipline.

Shelby Man Heads Junior Baseball Loop In District

By JOHN E. PATRICK
N-J State Correspondent

SHELBY — Last week an announcement was made at a 5th District meeting of the American Legion at Norwalk that Walter Cron had been elected to serve as president of the district's Junior Baseball league.

Although the announcement was not startling it certainly had its approval by a cross section of citizens of Shelby especially those who have youngsters of the age affected by the program.

For it has been said "keep the boy off the streets and you've helped lick juvenile deliquency."

To go back a few years Walter was a member of the American Legion Americanism committee which was instrumental in starting the Legion school awards in Shelby for the top essays on Americanism. This program has done a lot in combating the evils of communism.

Cron is beginning his fourth year with the youngsters that make up the Legion junior baseball team. He has served two years as coach and this season will complete his second year as manager. The sportmanship and clean competitive spirit these boys absorb in this best loved of all American sports has given Cron a satisfaction that fully repays all the time and effort expended with these youngsters.

Cron hopes to have a record number of boys out for the team this year and with the season going into the mid-August it will give the younger boys an opportunity to play in the last half of the season. The team is sponsored by the O'Brien Post 326, Hodges Coal Co., and Bourgeois Motor company.

Cron has been post public relations officer for the past four years and has served on the post activities committee since its formation in 1947. He has also been active in other phases of Legion work since his return from service in 1944. Married, he has a daughter, four years old and resides at 4½ Walnut street.

Line, Record Boards For Ashlanders

Phone Firm Installs Units In Exchanges

ASHLAND — With installation of six new CLR (combined line and record) boards at the Northern Ohio Telephone company offices here last week, the system now is completed in all 66 exchanges of the company.

The new system enables persons making long distance calls from here to stay on the line until the call is placed. Formerly the operator had to call back when the call was completed.

The four old long distance boards at the office were also converted to CLR type, giving 10 boards for long distance operation.

The local telephone company, formerly the Star Telephone company was recently purchased by the Northern Ohio company.

Two-Day Farmers Institute At Hayesville This Week

HAYESVILLE — More than 700 persons are working to make Farmers Institute in the local school a success. It will be held Friday and Saturday and is sponsored by the Hay-ver-mif club of which Harold Wilson is president.

Women's group will take an active part with 15 church guilds, aid societies, culture clubs and social circles participating. More than 100 local school children will assist in the musical portion of the program and a huge family pot luck dinner is scheduled Saturday.

A sculpture, oil painting and textile painting display by Mrs. Larry Twitchell of Mifflin and former instructor in the Mansfield schools is a highlight among the exhibits which also list hobby collections and flower arrangements, stage decorations and setting by the Hayesville Garden club. The Searchlight club will contribute "Hayesville 50 Years Ago."

Friday morning the elementary musical program is featured with the high school glee clubs booked in the afternoon. Another Friday afternoon highlight will be a panel discussion on practical household questions by members of the Future Homemakers of America of Hayesville participating.

An outstanding offering will be the appearance of a 60-voice Mixed Choir on Friday. Choristers from seven churches in the Hayesville school district comprise the choir with the oldest member 68 years of age and the two youngest being 12. The choir holds it final rehearsal at 2 p. m. today.

Saturday afternoon the Hayesville Gospel Male Quartet will be heard and the Saturday night closing feature will be the staging of three one-act plays on its Community Club night billing. These will be presented by casts from Cowman's Eckey's and the Progressive Community clubs.

Combined Ages of 28 Lucas Area Persons Exceed 2,240

84, widow of Alec Shambaugh, and Mrs. Anna Mowers, 80, widow of Isaac Mowers, are the closest octogenarian neighbors living on either side of Mrs. McClead. Mrs. Catharine Ridge, 83, widow of William Ridge, lives alone most of the time in her home on Main street but spends her winters with her son in Syracuse, N. Y.

Rev. M. L. Bright, another older resident of Main street, barely misses the "80" classification. He will be 80 his next birthday.

Mrs. Laura Clinker Moffett, 83, the widow of George Moffett, and Mrs. Sarah Flenner, 81, widow of Charles Flenner, live on other streets in the village.

In the Monroe township community not far outside the village are: Mr. and Mrs. Wash Smith, who will be 88 and 80, respectively, in April, and who live alone in their farm home; Mrs. Mayme Rummel Brennstuhl, 84, wife of George Brennstuhl, who lives just outside the village corporation. George Rummel, 80, brother of Mrs. Brennstuhl, who lives alone in his farm home west of Lucas; Rev. and Mrs. John Wesley Overmyer, both well past 80, who also live alone in their home just off State Route 39, west of Lucas; and Mrs. Olive Welty, 87, widow of Carey Welty, who is an active housekeeper for a relative.

NATIVE OF ENGLAND

Mrs. Ann Harvey, 84, a native of England, moved to the Lucas community from Shawnee, Ohio in 1942. She is the widow of Louis Harvey.

Mrs. Alice Mengert, 89-year-old widow of Fred Mengert, lives alone in her Pleasant Valley home. Two sons live nearby.

Mrs. Allie Snyder Berry, 80, widow of Francis Berry, lives in the home of her daughter in Pleasant Valley.

Mrs. Cora Zediker Beasore, who will be 83 on her next birthday, resides with her daughter too. She is the widow of Courtney Beasore.

Mrs. Allie Snyder, 86, mother of Monroe Township Trustee Grover Snyder and the widow of Louis Snyder, lives alone at the extreme south end of the township.

Mrs. Cora Wigton, 89-year-old widow of Pierce Wigton, resides in the home of her daughter. She is in poor health.

George Applegate, 80, who lives in the home of his son, is a nearby octogenarian neighbor of Mrs. Wigton.

Ernest A. Moffett, 82, a well known old-timer, continues to reside on his farm south of Lucas where he is cared for by his son and family who share the home.

Frank Mowery, 82, a lifelong resident of the locality, and Mrs. Mowery, who is almost 10 years his junior, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary almost two years ago. They reside on their farm in Pleasant Valley.

Mrs. Alice McKisson, in the east corner of Monroe township and Mrs. Rudolph Isaly, in the west section, are others of the advanced age group.

RESIDING ELSEWHERE

No listing of Lucas older people would be complete without mention of several who are native sons and daughters but who are now residing elsewhere.

Mrs. Hattie Furst Culler, widow of Dr. J. F. Culler, pioneer Lucas physician, will be 89 on March 17. She resides in Mansfield with her daughter.

Mrs. Sophie McDermott, who is almost 86, lives at the Hammond Home in Mansfield. Widow of James McDermott, a former Lucas community farmer, the couple moved to Lucas Main street before his retirement.

Levi Briggle and his sister, Mrs. Sarah Glosser, both in their advanced eighties, moved to Largo Florida, where they have relatives, after they sold their home in Lucas a few years ago.

Mrs. Hattie Young, who is almost 87, now lives with a grandson in Shelby. She is the widow of Henry Young. Until a few years ago, Mrs. Young lived near Melco in the home of a son, now deceased.

Mrs. Jennie Leiter Wolfe, mother of County Auditor Norman Wolfe with whom she resides, claims Lucas as her home. She and her late husband, also named Norman, were members of pioneer families here. She is more than 93 years old, her Lucas friends claim.

Gaylord Parry, 80, who resides in Iowa, paid his native Lucas a visit a few months ago.

(WRITER'S NOTE: The Lucas community esteems its older residents at home or away. If any of the facts or ages are incorrect or if any names have been omitted, it is unintentional and regretted. Some persons missed mention because their homes, although considered in the Lucas community, are outside Monroe township boundaries. Others may have missed mention because ages are not always available.)

$427,000 In Willard Ordinance

WILLARD — The city council has heard three readings of the 1949 annual appropriation ordinance for Willard, which ordinance provides for the probable expenditures during the year of about $427,000 for the operation of the village government departments.

Expenditures are proposed as follows: General fund, which includes the operation of city hall, city clerk's office, mayor janitor council, solicitor and other wages and salaries, $8,195; safety fund, incorporating fire and police, $19,754; service fund, $11,930; cemetery, $4,230; hospital operation, $106,800; hospital equipment, $586; hospital building fund, $3,350; hospital special operating expenses, $5,000. Park improvement fund, $2,343 recreation fund, $1,479; swimming pool operation, $4,900; mausoleum, $142; firemen's indemnity fund, $2,983; auto license, $13,000; gas tax, $17,000; bond fund and interest, $10,925; water fund, $46,800; electricity, $157,000; sewage treatment, $10,100; total, $427,517. Plate Sales Light

BUCYRUS — Bucyrus' two automobile registrars reported unusually light demand for the new Ohio license plates. They reported total sales of about 700 compared with the usual sales of about 1,500 plates for the first two days. Local registrars are J. E. Serts and Fred Trautman.

LIKE OLD TIMES — Reminiscent of beach costumes several decades ago — in a very mild way — is the swim ensemble of Shirley Model, "Miss Sea Glamor of 1949," at Miami, Fla. Wearing of black elastic hose, however, probably does not signal a return to all the features of the gay 90's outfit.

Say Shift to Lower Prices Causing Lag

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Are we on the slow down grade to another 1933?

Jobless jumped from 1,640,000 in October to 2,700,000 in January. A billion fewer dollars are floating around, in daily sales, than at the postwar peak in December 1947.

Railroads, textile mills, shoe factories, are either laying off workers or working them shorter weeks.

Jumping unemployment figures have alerted economists in the department of labor, department of commerce and social security administration.

Government economists generally agree today's events mean we are shifting to lower prices. But they say this need not mean continuous unemployment. Somewhere along the line they think large numbers of buyers should show up again as prices drop, because they estimate Americans still have savings of $265,000,000,000.

PRICE DROPS SPOTTY

Government research shows that the dropping prices are spotty. Social security experts say they hit luxuries, such as furs and jewelry, first. They are now hitting some clothes and shoes. They have not yet hit the scarce and high-priced steel products.

Both prices and jobs began to drop in October. By January the numbers of those newly out of jobs began to level off.

One job expert lays today's situation to a variety of reasons He says: "This is the first y . . since the war manufacturers have taken time for inventories. (That is, they have stopped buying all the materials they can get and are stocking up for limited periods.) For another, people are catching up now on the shortages. Further, January is traditionally a month of low employment. Today's employment is not yet serious."

County Beekeepers To Meet March 9

The Richland County Beekeepers association will hold a special meeting at Liberty park at 8 p. m. March 9. The regular meeting has been postponed.

Senior Class Play Scheduled March 31

By MARGIE GOODMAN

Put a red circle around Thursday, March 31, on your calendar! Why? That's the day the public will view the senior class play, "Personal Appearance." I peeped in at one of their daily rehearsals, and you can take my word for it—you'll really get your money's worth. Audrey McCoy, as a famous Hollywood actress, would outshine many a "Cinemaland" starlet. Did you know that last summer she attending Bowling Green university on a dramatic scholarship? Yes, keep your eye on Audrey McCoy!

Margie

The production staff for the play has been chosen by Earl Heasley and Miss Martha Eckert, directors. Barbara Bowles will have the all-important job of prompter; properties: Susan Stoodt, chairman, Mary Biddle, Pat Jackson, Diane Zehrback, Betty Bauman, Gloria Weimer, Dick Eliot, and Bob Mathews; advertising: Doug Black, chairman, Jean Maurer, Gilbert Templeton, Shirley Reep and Margie Goodman; program. Despina Nickas, chairman, Norma McCally, and Ginger Brownfield; tickets: Emily Stephan, chairman, Jim Morris, Merlyn Klee, and Shirley Hill.

The ushers will be Anne Shawber, chairman, Graceann Fogle, Charlot Hayward, Delores Balliet, Jane Hughes, Ellen Bromfield, Elsie Hager, Barbara Elahnik, Carmella Greer, and Marilyn Bell.

Jannet and Ferris Robins will put on a musical assembly on March 17 for the student body. This French lad and Scottish lassie have met with outstanding success from coast to coast with their fast-moving novelty act of continental flavor. Another program scheduled for next week is the Lima Central High school choir who will sing for us on March 11.

Our own choir will put on a concert entitled "Prelude to Spring" for the general public on Wednesday, March 9, at 8 p. m. The choir under the direction of A. Lamoine Derr will present these and many more selections: "I Talked to God," "O Hear These Our Word," "God of My Life" with soloists Jean Turner and Joan Landis, "Dry Bones," "Country Style," "Powder Your Face With Sunshine" and "Darktown Strutter's Ball."

THE NEWS-JOURNAL education tour swings south again to stop off at Otterbein college, Westerville, for a few hours.

Otterbein is one of two institutes of higher learning in the world to open its door from the beginning to women. Oberlin, the most recent in the college series, was the first to offer women equal rights. Just prior to the Civil war, the college students and faculty were active in the cause to liberate Negro slaves.

The YMCA and YWCA at Otterbein were the first college associations in the state of Ohio. The first faculty at the southern college consisted of two teachers. That staff has grown to the number of eighty-eight.

Five local social fraternities and seven sororities are active on the campus. Three of the fraternities maintain houses in the village. Each sorority has a club room in Cochran hall.

Otterbein opened in 1847 under the auspices of the General Conference of the Evangelical United Brethren church. The college is named for Philip William Otterbein, a missionary from Germany, who arrived in America in 1752. He was the minister to the German-speaking people of eastern Pennsylvania and Maryland.

Benjamin R. Hanby was a student at Otterbein when he wrote "Darling Nelly Gray," which has been called the "Uncle Tom's Cabin" of American song.

The snack bar is one of the newest additions to the campus. The inside walls are paneled with insignias of different organizations hanging on them. A homey atmosphere is added with the tie-back flowered drapes at the windows. The ice cream bar is manned by the students.

Robert C. Horn, radio speech instructor at the college and former Mansfielder, instructs Chuck Perkins, Olivetta McCoy and Carl Lash in some of the technicalities of radio. Chuck, who is a senior left halfback on the football team, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leri Wilder, Glenmont. Olivetta, who was an attendant to the queen at football homecoming, is a sophomore at the college. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. J. C. McCoy, 508 Prospect street, Bucyrus. Carl's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Irvin L. Lash, Mifflin lake, and he is a senior student.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Monn and daughter, Ann Louise, who is a year old, are shown in their house trailer which provides them a home while Don completes his G.I. training. Don is a junior and his parents are Mr. and Mrs. Chester Monn, 90 East Smiley, Shelby. Margaret Monn is the former Miss Schreck. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Schreck, 62 Auburn street, Shelby.

Three students are pictured probing into the deep subject of science. They are David Yohn, Hazel Hockett and Colleen Backelder. Dave's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Yohn of Shelby. Hazel is a pre-med sophomore student. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Hockett, 264 Hammond avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Harley Backelder, R. D. 2, Mt. Gilead, are Colleen's parents. She is a junior.

James Milliron, Marion Smith, Mrs. Richard Greenow and Carl Stoufer stop for a talk in front of Carnegie library on the campus. Jim, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Deppe, 1764 Springmill street, is a junior. Marion, also a junior, is from Trenton, N. J. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Fawcett, Trenton. Mrs. Greenow and her husband both attend college. They are from Jamestown, N. Y. Mrs. Greenow, a senior, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Bratt, R. D. 2, Jamestown. Old Records Found for Ladies' Aid

By EVELYN SHEER

Recently Mrs. Clarence Foust of Lexington came across an old secretarys notebook minus the binding and with time worn yellowed pages. Much of the writing had faded through the years. In this book was the record of the organizing of the Ladies Aid of the Lexington Congregational Church August 5th 1890 at the home of Mrs. George (Mrs. Foust's grandmother) Mrs. E. Sowers was the president and Mrs. E. A. Thuma, secretary.

On October 21st 1890 the ladies voted to serve a chicken pie dinner with pumpkin pie or plum pudding for dessert. 25 cents for adults 15 cents for children under ten was charged to attend the affair. This same day they decided to cushion the church seats.

Many times rags were gathered and carpets made for the parsonage and even once they made rugs for the church. They served a large number of dinners, suppers and ice cream socials and did a considerable amount of quilting.

Tucked in between the pages were hastily scrawled secretarys notes, very old reciepts, the membership roll of the church, financial reports, (a half days sewing or quilting netted 50 cents) and lists of food to be solicited for suppers.

After fifty nine years of continual service to the church the ladies today continue to do many of the same things to aid the church. There are still ice cream socials, suppers, and quilting done today just as there was before the turn of the century.

Commission Salesman To Retire On "Salary"
"Because I'm a salesman on commission I never know just what my month's pay is going to be. I have some mighty sweet months—and some pretty sour ones, too. And that's all right so long as I'm in there pitchin'. I wouldn't want things different!

"But it's awfully nice to know that some day there is going to be a long line of definite checks coming in to me monthly for the rest of my life.
"The way the Phoenix Mutual has worked out my retirement plan is pretty neat. With $12,500 going to my family if I should kick off, I'll never get to feel that I'm just saving selfishly for my old age alone. They are protected, too."
The above testimonial letter expresses the feeling of many Mansfield salesmen today. Perhaps you, too, are "on commission" and want the security some day of monthly retirement checks. Then send for our booklet, "How to Get a Guaranteed Income for Life." It's free—no obligation, of course.

Covering the Younger Set

Just Ask Ann

Do you kids realize that it isn't too terribly long until prom night will slip around? Speaking of the prom, I hear there are rumors, gossip and all sorts of talk circulating around vine-covered MHS about this night.

What's this talk of Jackie Hurley maybe being a jinx to every boy she dates? It seems that the fate of each one has been to turn up with a broken leg sometime following. . . . Is there a feud between Chuck Au and Pat Jackson? . . . Those soupy looking concoctions seen on Dave Stanton's and Bob Mathew's trays every noon are composed of two dishes of ice cream and one glass of milk, stirred for several minutes. Results? A delicious milk shake, so the boys say. . . . Joe Vivian can't make up his mind whether he wants his class ring or whether Mert Kinkle can have it. . . .

• • •

Jimmy Bechtler and Tina Taylor are a very recent couple. . . . What is this pet pick Bill Keller has on Pat Jennings. He sure takes advantage of it during home room assembly. . . . Shirley Scott wants to be invited to a party. Do you think maybe some of you can help her out? . . . Pat Sharrock is wearing Mike Gruber's gold football. Draw your own conclusions! . . . Maybe we have a new romance budding. Jane Bushnell and Bob Busch have been seen exchanging phrases lately. . . . Mona Hammett better refrain from changing her mind in mid-air when she's trying to dive in swimming class. Somebody might get hurt, Mona. . . . Bob Burkhart and Lyn Guthrie seem to be one couple who have hit it off swell. . . .

• • •

Exclusive: Only 55 days 'til Ruggles opens! . . . Sara Scott had a party after the game last Friday night for her friends. . . . Did Rudy Knapp discover a gold mine in California? Such extravagances. . . . Pat Ealy is sporting a new pair of tortoise shell rimmed glasses. . . . What's this? Pat Jackson swooning over Gil Templeton. It seems all the senior girls are falling in line with Pat on this idea ever since Gil sang "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling" in senior choir the other day. . . . Norma Lee Kunkle and Cliff Hammer compose another new couple. . . .

• • •

Covering the Younger Set

Just Ask Ann

Do you kids realize that it isn't too terribly long until prom night will slip around? Speaking of the prom, I hear there are rumors, gossip and all sorts of talk circulating around vine-covered MHS about this night.

What's this talk of Jackie Hurley maybe being a jinx to every boy she dates? It seems that the fate of each one has been to turn up with a broken leg sometime following. . . . Is there a feud between Chuck Au and Pat Jackson? . . . Those soupy looking concoctions seen on Dave Stanton's and Bob Mathew's trays every noon are composed of two dishes of ice cream and one glass of milk, stirred for several minutes. Results? A delicious milk shake, so the boys say. . . . Joe Vivian can't make up his mind whether he wants his class ring or whether Mert Kinkle can have it.

• • •

Jimmy Bechtler and Tina Taylor are a very recent couple. . . . What is this pet pick Bill Keller has on Pat Jennings. He sure takes advantage of it during home room assembly. . . . Shirley Scott wants to be invited to a party. Do you think maybe some of you can help her out? . . . Pat Sharrock is wearing Mike Gruber's gold football. Draw your own conclusions! . . . Maybe we have a new romance budding. Jane Bushnell and Bob Busch have been seen exchanging phrases lately. . . . Mona Hammett better refrain from changing her mind in mid-air when she's trying to dive in swimming class. Somebody might get hurt, Mona. . . . Bob Burkhart and Lyn Guthrie seem to be one couple who have hit it off swell. . . .

• • •

Exclusive: Only 55 days 'til Ruggles opens! . . . Sara Scott had a party after the game last Friday night for her friends. . . . Did Rudy Knapp discover a gold mine in California? Such extravagances. . . . Pat Ealy is sporting a new pair of tortoise shell rimmed glasses. . . . What's this? Pat Jackson swooning over Gil Templeton. It seems all the senior girls are falling in line with Pat on this idea ever since Gil sang "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling" in senior choir the other day. . . . Norma Lee Kunkle and Cliff Hammer compose another new couple. . . .

• • •

TIFFIN MAN LOSES 40 LBS. WITH RENNEL

"I cannot say enough for what Rennel has done for me," writes Mr. D. S. Ladd, Box 805, Tiffin, Ohio. "I am 67 years of age. Since taking Rennel I have lost 40 lbs. and feel so much better."

It's simple. It's amazing, how quickly one may lose pounds of bulky, unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this recipe yourself. It's easy—no trouble at all and costs little. It contains nothing harmful. Just go to your druggist and ask for four ounces of liquid Rennel Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Then take two tablespoonsful twice a day. That's all there is to it.

If the very first bottle doesn't show the simple, easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender, more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't just seem to disappear almost like magic from neck, chin, arms, bust, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles, just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow the easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active. —Adv.

Best man was Cletus Phillips of Mansfield. The ushers were: Dale Aurand and Glen Muhlbach.

A reception for sixty-five followed the ceremony, in the basement of the church. A three-tiered wedding cake, topped with a miniature bride and groom, centered the bridal table. A bouquet of pink snapdragons also decorated the table.

Hostesses at the reception were Mrs. Charles Blosser, Mrs. James Scott and Mrs. Almedia Irwin. Miss Norma Olson and Mrs. Dale Aurand poured. Mrs. Russel Snyder presided for the bride's book.

Following a wedding trip through the southern states, the couple will be at home at 23 South Broadway. Mrs. Franklin's traveling costume was a red gabardine suit with black accessories.

Out-of-town guests for the wedding were present from Greenwich, Tiro, Shiloh, Ganges, Mansfield and Crestline.

Bauer-Blank Wedding Service Solemnized Saturday Afternoon

WEARING a light ivory shade of skinner satin, Miss Martha Kathern Bauer became the bride of Harvey James Blank Saturday at 2 o'clock. The lovely formal wedding gown was made along very simple lines. The neckline was a modified sweetheart style with long tight fitting sleeves which came to points over the hands. The bodice and skirt were joined with a wide midrift. The extremely full skirt extended into a long wide sweeping train.

The Rev. John Gensel performed the single ring ceremony before an altar banked with palms, ferns, and two beauty baskets of assorted gladioli and snapdragons in St. Paul's Lutheran church.

Miss Bauer is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Bauer, 203 Second avenue, and Mr. Blank is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Blank, 79 Newlon place.

Mrs. Harvey Lyle presided at the organ and Miss Marilyn Little was the soloist for the ceremony.

Miss Erma Bauer, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor. Her bridemaids were Mrs. Rudy Bauer, sister-in-law, and Miss Pat Winter, a close friend. Little Adeline Bauer, sister of the bride, was the flower girl.

Miss Bauer chose three lovely spring shades for her attendants' gowns. The maid of honor wore violet and the bridesmaids were attired in lime green. The flower girl wore jonquil yellow. The gowns were all alike in style, made with a slightly off-the-shoulder necklines which were edged with wide berthas of taffeta. Under the taffeta bertha was a second bertha of Chantilly lace. The very full skirts were circular with a wide cumberbund softly draped at the waistline. Short lace mits, matching the gowns, were worn. Little poke bonnets of Chantilly lace were chosen for the headpieces.

The maid of honor carried a bouquet of orchid sweetpeas and yellow roses. Arrangements of pink sweetpeas and Johanna Hill roses were the flowers for the bridesmaids, and the flower girl carried a yellow basket of rose petals.

Mrs. Bauer chose a silver grey street length dress with black accessories for her daughter's wedding. Mrs. Blank was attired in a navy blue silk dress with black accessories. Both mothers had white gardenia corsages.

The guests were escorted to their pews by Rudy Bauer, brother of the bride, and Jim Conroy, friend of the couple.

Immediately following the ceremony a dinner for 100 people was held at the Sons of Herman hall. Two hundred guests were in attendance for the reception. The hall was decorated with white, yellow, green and orchid crepe paper. Two beauty baskets of spring flowers were placed in the room. The bride's table was centered with a four-tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom.

For her honeymoon to Cleveland and several northern cities, the new Mrs. Blank wore an olive green suit with brown satin shoes, purse and hat to match. She wore a white gardenia corsage.

When the couple returns they will reside at 302 Second avenue.

Mrs. Blank is a graduate of Mansfield Senior high school and at the time of her marriage is employed at the Tappan Stove company. Mr. Blank attended St. Peter's high school and served three years in the U. S. Navy. He is an employe of the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company.

Dominion Buys Firm At Crestline

Equipment To Be Moved to Mansfield

Purchase of the Buckeye Electric Manufacturing company in Crestline by the Dominion Electric company and removal of the Crestline firm's equipment to Mansfield was announced here yesterday.

The Crestline firm has employed 102 persons and had an annual payroll of about a quarter of a million dollars. It was organized in 1944 by Martin Waisbren and John Livingston.

When the plant is moved to Mansfield, from 30 to 40 more persons will be employed here, according to Robert Shaffer, director of sales for Dominion.

The Crestline plant has been manufacturing toasters, auto coils and other small electrical devices.

The Buckeye company has been doing sub-assembly work for Dominion.

The merger is designed to increase efficiency in the company's operations, Shaffer said. He pointed out that the market is tightening up and new manufacturing arrangements would have to be made to meet the selling changes.

The Crestline building, also included in the purchase, will be maintained by the Dominion, but no manufacturing will be done, there, Shaffer said.

HALLOWED FLOWER — This sacred lily of India, hallowed flower there, is the most prized one in the plant collection of Mrs. J. R. Mosey, of 528 West Pearl street, Willard. During the 15 years Mrs. Mosey has had the lily its greatest height was six feet. This year it attained a height of 54 inches. The flower has an offensive odor when in bloom and appears only in February.

Broadway's 'Big Noise' Has Troubles, Too

Playwright Finds Profession Agonizing

NEW YORK—(AP)—Playwrights and professional wrestlers have a lot in common. They sweat a lot. Each is subject to a wide assortment of aches and pains.

But the wrestler can ease his bruises at the local apothecary, whereas the playwright—whose pain is beyond medicine—must work out his own salvation.

If you think a gouged eye or a bruised kidney is worse than the mental shenanigans of a writer who has misplaced a line of dialogue, or messed up a scene, go and see Arthur Miller, whose "Death of a Salesman" currently is the big noise on Broadway.

Miller is a product of the WPA writers' project and the Brooklyn navy yard. He is the collapsible type. Whether you meet him in a restaurant or a producer's office, he settles almost imperceptibly in his chair as he talks until his six feet, two and a half inches are draped over most of the furniture in sight.

His face is gaunt and angular. Miller hates people to say he resembles Abraham Lincoln, which he does. He has brown eyes. He is 33 years old.

Arthur Miller was born in New York, but moved to Brooklyn when he was 12 and went to high school there. Then he got a job at an auto parts warehouse and saved enough to go to the University of Michigan.

"I wanted to write and I wrote plays for years, dozens of them, until I discovered I didn't know how to write."

But at Michigan Miller began to catch on. He won two awards in his sophomore and junior years. He also met Mary Slattery, a fellow student from Lakewood, O., and eventually they were married. They have a daughter, Jane, aged four and a half, and a son, Robert, 17 months.

"In my senior year at Michigan—they had lousy football teams while I was there—I won $1,250 in a national playwriting contest sponsored by the Theater Guild. It was called 'They Too Arise.' The WPA put it on in the Middle West, but it never reached New York.

"Then I got a job with WPA, but it didn't last. The depression was about over and it folded after three months.

"For the next year, I suppose you could say I was unemployed. I did nothing except try to write. There is nothing lonelier, or more exasperating."

Miller said he next turned to radio for ready cash. He wrote for the Columbia Work Shop ("not much pay, but it helped") and graduated into writing for "Cavalcade of America."

Miller's first play in 1941 was a six-day flop.

"It lost $55,000. It was partly my fault, partly that of the director. You can't keep rewriting a play without killing it. You can't tamper with the original impulse."

His second play, "All My Sons," was an artistic success. It won the Critics Circle award.

"Mary and I took the royalties and bought a little place in Connecticut."

"Death of a Salesman" is in no sense autobiographical, as some have said. It is a drama of everyday family life and traces the frustration of a thoroughly good man, a traveling salesman, whose factual achievements never quite measured up to the dream of his youth. He wanted to be a great man, admired and respected by his sons and his wife. When he realizes in the end what they already know, that his life is a failure, he chooses the easy way out.

Miller is quoted as saying that he wrote "Death of a Salesman" in six weeks.

"The actual writing, yes—but don't forget I had it in my mind for ten years. The writing is nothing if you know exactly what you want to say.

"But God! Knowing what to say!"

'Bold Look' In Male Attire On Way Out; Colors Boosted

CINCINNATI—(AP)— The "bold look" in men's clothes is passe. Now it's the "dominant look" and you men will have to dress in colors of the "male peacock" to be in style.

The National Association of Men's Apparel clubs came to those conclusions in deciding what the Beau Brummels should wear this spring.

The association also supported a program introduced by the Illinois club. It goes something like this:

"Irish green"—you'll never guess—for March 17.

A national color scheme for each season.

And further, the association will attempt, through education, to have women do a better job of buying their men's clothes.

Estimating that women buy between 80 and 85 per cent of the clothing men wear, the association plans to conduct campaigns in women's magazines and through other outlets to let the fairer sex know all about masculine fashions.

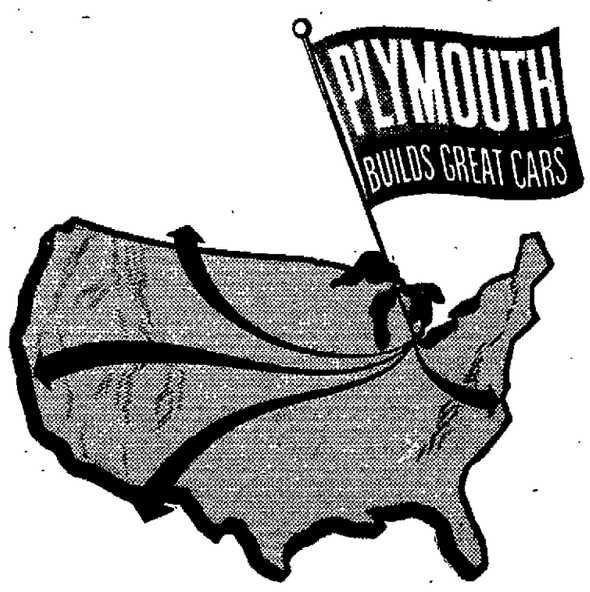
Down steep mountain grade

Through blinding blizzard



PLYMOUTH tests cars on a proving ground that's bounded on the NORTH by the Canadian Prairies—on the EAST by the Atlantic Ocean—on the SOUTH by the Gulf of Mexico and Northern Mexico—on the WEST by the Pacific Ocean!

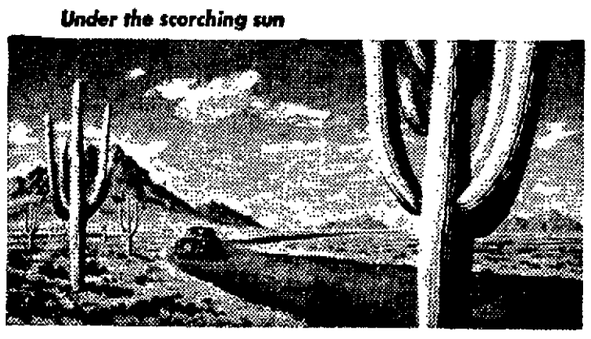
Up the highest hill

Under the scorching sun



Into stinging dust storm

Over the roughest road

You can test a car in a laboratory—which Plymouth does in one of the world's most modern research centers.

You can see what a car will do under certain conditions by testing it on a fixed proving ground. But the only way you can tell what a car will do under all conditions is to test it under all conditions!

That's why the Plymouth Proving Ground extends from ocean to ocean, border to border. That's why Plymouth test cars are put through their paces on the very roads—under the very climatic conditions—that Plymouths are destined to meet when people buy them.

These tests never end. Day after day, year after year, Plymouth test cars move over every kind of road in every kind of weather. And these cars are so good that it takes extremes of driving conditions to test them completely.

Plymouths battle through 40-below-zero blizzards in northern Minnesota. They take the beating heat of Death Valley. They climb the highest passes of the Rockies and the Appalachians. Plymouth test cars fight through the swirling sandstorms of the Dust Bowl. And they plow through the mud-ruts in rural roads, through the heavy traffic of metropolitan areas.

Working with detailed data already supplied by exhaustive laboratory studies, the test drivers constantly check—and double-check—their cars for performance, safety, economy, comfort, durability—for gasoline consumption at varying speeds—for brake action, clutch action, body noises—everything!

Out of these continuous nationwide driving tests—covering millions of miles—come facts which engineers and designers screen with eagle eyes. That's why the Plymouth—the low-priced car most like high-priced cars—has been a constantly better car—a constantly better buy for your money.

Right now, production is underway on the great New Plymouth. Those who are building these automobiles never know to what kind of use they will be put. One car may be heading for a kindly old lady who will coddle it all its days. Another is certain to be heading for the slam-bang wear of continuous taxi service. (There are far more Plymouth taxis than any other kind!) So Plymouth builds every car to take it—under any and all conditions!

Of this you may be sure—

When you see the great New Plymouth on display March 18, it will be all dressed up and ready to go—tested and proved through and through—to give you PLYMOUTH PERFORMANCE you've never known before!

Some Bits Picked Up From Here and There In Sports

By Fred Tharp
(News-Journal Sports Editor)

ALONG ABOUT this time each year the basketball teams are all competing in dribble derbys. . . . And we see our share. . . . But with the baseball teams in the South preparing for another five-month fling our mind keeps straying to sunnier climes. . . . So we were mighty happy to run across a whole raft of sport oddities the other day. . . . Most of them bordered on things baseball and naturally wound up at the tag end of this sentence.

TOP THIS freak double play.

Ed Linke was pitching for the Washington Senators against the New York Yankees in 1936 and a line drive off the bat of Jesse Hill bopped him in the forehead. The ball rebounded straight into the mitt of Catcher Jack Remond who doubled up a Yank runner.

Linke found out all about it after he came to.

HAL PECK, Cleveland outfielder, was playing with the Philadelphia Athletics a few seasons back. He fielded Skeeter Newsome's two-base hit and whipped it on a line towards the infield. The ball knocked down a pigeon in flight.

★ ★ ★

MARTY PURTELL of the Boston Red Sox hit only two homers during the 1910 season. One he got the hard way.

Purtell drove a hot grounder toward the third sacker. The ball took a bad hop, struck the fielder in the head and bounced into the grandstand for a home run.

WE'VE ALL HEARD of sport shirt Bill Veeck. But what about Bill Goodman's "short shirt" single. Bill got 138 hits last year, including 30 for extra bases. But he will always remember the "short shirt" blow.

It all happened this way.

Bill lined a hot grounder directly at Eddie Joost, the Athletics' shortstop. The ball took a hop—and disappeared! Ted Williams, rounding third, paused to look in amazement. So did Goodman, after he passed first. So did every player on the field and the fans in the stands. Joost looked too—and then, from out of his shirt pulled the ball, which had hopped right up a sleeve and into his blouse!

During the war years, Cincinnati and Detroit met in an exhibition game. Just as Jim Bloodworth, Detroit, hit a grounder toward second, the national anthem was started by accident. The infielder, on hearing the strain, snapped to attention and the ball rolled through his legs for a single.

TOLEDO U. has had more than its share of bad breaks this season. The summary of mishaps to players reads like this: two broken fingers, four injured knees, a charley horse, one broken ankle and two sprained, one cold, a rib injury, three influenza cases, an asthma case and three men lost through ineligibility. All of these kept players out of action at least a week.

To top it all off, Coach Jerry Bush stomped angrily into the dressing room after his club dropped a one-point decision to Michigan on New Year's night. He smashed his hand into a locker, breaking a finger.

Then Bush went home, slipped on the ice in front of his house and wound up with a broken ankle.

EVER HEAR of a half-homer? Bill Bryson of Des Moines relays the story of the game some years ago between two Missouri teams, Cascade and Buckhorn. Cascade was leading 1-0 with two out in the last of the ninth when a Buckhorn hitter smashed a fly that had all the earmarks of a circuit clout. The left fielder backed up against the fence for a desperate, leaping effort.

Just as he jumped, the ball split in two, one half being speared by the fielder—and the other half sailing over the wall! The umpire, caught in the middle of a furious, near-riotous debate, got out from under with this decision.

He declared Cascade the winner—by half a run!

Hunters Down Six Red Foxes

Six red foxes were bagged in a fox hunt held Saturday near Little Washington by the Richland County Fox Hunters association. Five hawks were also killed. About 125 men participated in the hunt.

Those who got the foxes were Henry Morganstern, Charles Ervin, Harold Snyder, Don Moore, David Scott and Raymond Bacquet.

Business meeting of the association will be held Monday night at the courthouse in Mansfield. A report will be given on bounty fees used for the purchase of pheasants and rabbits which will be released in the county. All bounty money derived from the fox hunts is used in this manner, association officers explained.

Denison Leader

GRANVILLE — (AP) — William (Pete) Ullmann, of Granville, has been chosen captain-elect of the Denison University basketball team for 1949-50.

'Medal' Tourney Dates Set

The Gold Medal basketball tournament will be narrowed to two teams this week according to plans announced yesterday by City Recreation Director Stan Kamen.

Eighteen of the original 26 teams remain in the joust and sixteen games will narrow the field down to the finalists by Friday. Finals are to be played Monday, March 14.

This week's complete schedule has not been drawn up because of gym availability problems but Kamen has listed four games each night for Monday and Tuesday.

COMPLETE FIRST ROUND

First round play will be completed in Monday's first two games which pair Martin Hardware and Ontario Community Church and First Christian with Butler Boosters. The Ontario Vets will meet Penn Auto-Sporting Goods in the third game while the Bellville Athletic club closes the program against Park Avenue Baptist.

All sessions start at 6:45. Monday's games will be played at Johnny Appleseed and Tuesday's at John Simpson. Tuesday, four games are scheduled, the Lucas Vets against Urschel Insurance, Richland Beverage against the Mansfield Tires, Komito's Clothes against Plymouth, Shelby Gumps against Shiloh American Legion.

Miss Grillo Closes Career By Taking $50,000 Handicap

ARCADIA, Calif. — (AP) — Miss Grillo, long distance running mare from the Argentine, closed out her racing career in victory yesterday when she won the $50,000 San Juan Capistrano handicap at Santa Anita park.

Sixty-five thousand fans saw the seven-year-old belle of the pampas come from behind and capture the closing day attraction at Santa Anita over a field of eight younger rivals.

Speeding into contention in the last quarter of the long mile and one-half grind, the Mill River stable contender pounded into the lead in the stretch and won the $38,100 top money by a length and a quarter.

Abe Hirschberg's Dinner Gong was second, and a length behind was the Foxcatcher Farm's Rose Beam.

Fourth place went to I. J. Collins' golden chestnut, Vulcan's Forge, winner of the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap a week ago.

A total of $633,096 was wagered on the race, a boost over the previous high for the meeting amounting to $593,429 registered in the Santa Anita handicap.

Dutchman Wins Mile

By RALPH POSTLEWAITE

"Six more games to the state championship". That's the words that Coach Vern Hoffman used to greet his newly crowned sectional champs when they entered the dressing room following the victory over Bucyrus at Senior high.

"We got the rebounds the first half", he said, when interviewed, "and that made the difference. We played our best ball of the year in that half," he added, "and if the boys can do that kind of a job from here on in we can go a long way."

The Tygers were happy. Lithe Jimmy Anderson cracked, "We must've been hot. But they're not what they are supposed to be." And big Norb Shibinski, dripping wet from the shower room, and reaching for a towel. . . . "Just so we get to Columbus. Bucyrus was cold the first half and we were exceptionally hot."

A. C. Jenkins beaming happily, rugged Ed Demyan and little "Pinky" Ferguson all saying, "Bucyrus was good, very good. And if we play ball, we'll go all the way to Columbus." Ken McCally believes likewise. "We'll go all the way to Columbus if we don't run into any bad luck," he stated, "and as for tonight . . . we caught Bucyrus off balance that first half and kept 'em that way."

The transition was significant. Quiet replaced hilarity. A depressed squad of Redmen were dressing quietly.

"Mansfield is by far the best ball club we've met this year," stated Al. "In my opinion they're better than the Findlay team we played last year, and Findlay went on to win the state championship." The Bucyrus kids were attentive now. They respect Al Pesek.

"The Mansfield offense, and defense (Al stressed that word defense) was terrific in that first half. I've scouted them three times this year and I've never seen them play that kind of ball. If they can continue to play the kind of ball they showed in this game, they'll be in Columbus for the state finals."

"And how about your squad, Al?" I asked.

"They've been under terrific pressure," he admitted. "Not only tournament pressure, but they've carried a long winning streak, and it's hurt their play over here. Our condition went far toward bringing us back in the second half."

"We go to Findlay you know," he concluded, "and we're not ready to be counted out yet."

And when I noted the expression on the boys faces when Al clipped that one off, I got the impression that the Redmen, to the last man, feel the same way.

Annual Maple Tourney Ends At Richland

The annual men's city bowling tournament concludes its month-long stay at the Richland Recreation Center alleys when the 12 teams in the Sons of Herman league roll today at 5 p.m.

Singles, doubles and all-events champions have already been crowned.

The doubles championship went to Carl "Farmer" Heilman and Bart Haley for the second straight year as they leveled 1269 pins. Frank Radler and S. Forsythe placed second with a whopping 1253.

Radler also came through in all-events with 1893, followed by the singles leader, Lloyd Hughes, who had 1888. Hughes leading total in the singles was 666, one pin better than Homer Bottomley.

Today's teams will be shooting for the spot now held by Baku Grotto. The team leader has a 3015 score while MAPCO is second with 2975. Third place is held by Schmidt Tire with 2968.

Rolling this afternoon will be Wolves, Misfits, Senators, Liberty, Snake Eyes, Yardbirds, Flyers, Secretaries, Candy Aces, Dead Heads, Mighty 13 and Presidents.

Richland Alleys Get Amvets 2nd Bowling Tourney

Three Meet Records Fall By Wayside

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. —(AP)— Three records were smashed today in an unprecedented Western conference indoor track meet which produced co-champions—Wisconsin and Ohio State—for the first time in history.

The surprising Badgers, led by double-winner Don Gehrmann, captured the last event on the program, the mile relay, in record-breaking form to tie Ohio State with 38 points apiece.

Wisconsin's Baton team of Gene Whipple, Mel Goldin, Gehrmann and Bob Mansfield, sped the mile in 3:18.6 to knock three-tenths second off the conference mark posted by Michigan in 1939 and matched by Ohio State in 1947.

The Buckeyes, defending relay champions, grabbed second place in the thrilling wind-up race to pocket eight vital points that provided them with a split title. Ohio State's team, consisting of Ed Reilly, Mark Whitaker, Harry Cogswell, and Mal Whitfield, turned in 3:20.1.

The Buckeyes won the team crown last year with 43 points. The 38 scored this time was the lowest winning tally since Ohio State's 37 total in 1942.

Illinois, third in the mile relay, finished third in the meet with 35 points, followed by Purdue with 21½, Minnesota 21, Indiana 18, Michigan 13½, Northwestern 10, and Iowa with a complete blank.

Gehrmann, a disappointment in his mile specialty, which he won in his poorest time of the season — 4:16.1 — apparently saved himself for the 880. In this race, the slight, 130-pounder strode to a 1:53.1 to clip eight-tenths second from the old conference mark held jointly by Charles Hornbostel of Indiana (1933) and Herb Barten of Michigan (1947).

Barten, who figured to repeat for the 880 title, floated home in last place after cutting the throttle when his bruised foot began paining. Ohio State's Don Washington was second to Gehrmann, about 25 yards behind.

Purdue's Jewell Daily hoisted the third meet record with a 24 foot 7 inch leap in the broad ump. It was 1¾ inches better than the old mark set by Paul Miller, also of Purdue, two years ago.

In addition to Gehrmann, the only other double-winner was Lloyd Duff of Ohio State. Duff, the star of the 1948 show, repeated as the 70 yard high hurdle champion in :08.7, three tenths second off the record. He also won the 70 yard lows in :08, two tenths shy of the mark. Michigan's Jim Mitchell was second to Duff both times.

Hal Omer of Purdue replaced Indiana's Charlie Peters as 60-yard dash champion with a :06.3 clocking. The Hoosier was runner-up. Mal Whitfield, Ohio State's Olympic star, took the 440 with the Badgers' Mansfield next. Defending 440 champion, Harry Cogswell of Ohio State, was fourth.

Jim Urquhart of Wisconsin pulled the biggest upset by beating out Illinois' Vic Twomey in the two mile. The husky Badger pounded ahead for the first time with one half lap to go and shot to a five-yard victory in 8:25 7—15 seconds off the record beam.

Other winners—High jump—Johnny Murphy, Ohio State, 6 feet 5½ inches; pole vaule—three way tie among Don Laz, Illinois, Tom Bannett, Wisconsin, and Harry Cooper, Minnesota, at 14 feet even; shotput—Norm Wasser, Illinois, 53 feet 3¼ inches.

Gumps Wallop Stars, 60-30

SHELBY — City league champion Gump's doubled the score on the All-Stars 60-30 here last night to win the feature game of a basketball twin bill. Mansfield Friendly House beat another all-star combination, 42-36, in the other game.

Leroy Dill led Gump's in the feature with 16 points while Thompson and Lucas pumped in 13 each. Bob Laubie counted 12 for the stars.

Browns Tilt Sale to Get Shot In Arm

An intensive ticket campaign to insure a full house for the Cleveland Browns-Mansfield all-stars basketball game March 16 will get underway this week according to Elmer Hedeen.

Hedeen is co-chairman of the Goodfellows club which is sponsoring the benefit contest. All proceeds, except the guarantee for the Browns, will go to the Friendly House gymnasium fund.

NEED EQUIPMENT

The new Friendly House building is scheduled to be completed within the next three months but needs equipment for the gym, nursery, cafeteria, game rooms, kindergarten, etc. The Goodfellows hope to raise more than $2,000 for the gym equipment.

Hedeen said yesterday that more than one-third of the $2 reserved seat tickets have already been sold but "the sale of $1 general admission tickets has been slow." The $2 ducats are good for all downstairs and rail seats.

Kiwanis club members are helping the Goodfellows with the ticket drive. Approximately 35 Kiwanians are handling the tickets which are also on sale at Tawse pharmacy, City News and Elks club.

PAIR OF GAMES

The all-stars have a pair of fine opponents booked for warm-up games today and tomorrow. The "aces" play at the Galion armory against the Galion Stars this afternoon at 3 p. m. and meet the Myers Pump team in the Ashland college gym tomorrow at 8 p. m. Players will meet at 1:45 p. m. today at the News-Journal.

Both the Galion and Ashland teams are favored over the all-stars, a collection of top players from city amateur league teams. Coaches Stan Kamen and Fred Tharp plan to rotate the 14-player squad to find the best combinations for a two-platoon system against the Browns. The all-stars would rather knock off the Browns than win the preliminary tests.

Myers Pump is easily one of Ohio's top teams with 32 wins in 36 games this year and 65 of 73 over the past two years. Just last week, Myers appeared in the Cleveland Arena, defeating one of the Forest City's better teams—Chase Brass and Copper—by a 47-25 score.

The Myers team has won two tournaments this year. It copped the Massillon Gold Medal joust and the Smithville Tri-County meet. Monday's game is being sponsored by the Ashland Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Penn Baseball Team to Meet

Baseball poked its nose in the Mansfield sport scene for the first time today with the call for candidates by Manager Lefty Deeds of the Penn Auto-Sporting goods baseball team.

Deeds has called a meeting for 8 p. m. Wednesday at Penn Auto and has asked "anyone" interested in playing with the team to be on hand. He stressed again that all positions on the team are open and that he intends to field a younger team than last year.

Last summer, the club, playing under the banner of the Mansfield Grays, won the state championship of the National Baseball Congress.

Kentucky Wins Crown

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—(AP)—Kentucky wrapped up its sixth successive Southeastern conference basketball championship here last night with a 68-52 victory over Tulane before more than 8,000 fans in the Jefferson county armory.

Indians Have Pictures Taken While Other Major Leaguers Train

TUCSON, Ariz. —(AP)— Cleveland's Indians held only a mild workout yesterday as Radio Comedian Bob Hope and a group of newsreel cameramen took over their training headquarters.

With 2,000 amused spectators looking on, Hope was filmed reporting to Manager Lou Boudreau as a young recruit and undergoing the rigors of spring training.

The Negro outfielder, who sprained his ankle in sliding Friday, did no running Saturday, but said he expected to be able to get around without difficulty today.

Tribe President Bill Veeck is expected to arrive then to confer with holdouts Joe Gordon and Gene Bearden. Veeck talked with three other players, Bob Lemon, Johnny Berardino and Russ Christopher, in Los Angeles yesterday, but kept the results a secret.

Only Second Baseman Buddy Blattner, acquired during the winter from the International league, is unsigned. Blattner is reported considering giving up baseball to continue on a television job in St. Louis.

Although he looked tired and worn after a five-day automobile trip from his San Dimas, Calif., home, the lanky right-hander told Manager Bucky Walters he was ready to start working out tomorrow.

Blackie said he felt sure he would return to his 1947 form when he won 22 and lost 8 for the Reds.

BRADENTON, Fla.—(AP)—Johnny Antonelli, the Rochester, N. Y., schoolboy who was paid a king's ransom for signing with the Boston Braves, is counted a regular starting pitcher by manager Billy Southworth.

"No maybe about it," said the skipper of the 1948 National league champs, "Antonelli is going to be a started. He will get plenty of work, starting with our first exhibitions. He definitely will pitch against Brooklyn at Miami next week end.

"The boy is plenty fast but needs to work on a change of pace. I'm turning him over to Johnny Cooney (coach) to work on that phase."

Ohio State Takes Big Nine Swim Lead

Purdue Ace Breaks Own World Mark

LAFAYETTE, Inr. —(AP)— A world record and a Big Nine mark fell last night as Ohio State University took a lead in the Big Nine conference swimming meet.

Keith Carter, Purdue star, brok his own record for a new world mark in the 150-yard medley event. He swam it in 1:31-2.

ASKS RECOGNITION

In January, Carter swam the event in 1:32.2 in a dual meet here and recognition of this as a world record has been asked.

The other record broken last night was the 440-yard free style by Bill Smith of Ohio State. His time was 4:43-4.

Carter's victory made him the star of the meet. He nabbed 16 points for the Boilermakers, annexing two firsts, one the new record, and a second.

With 10 events out of the way, the Buckeyes seemed well on their way toward taking the title from Michigan.

STATE HAS 51

At that point the standings were Ohio 51, Michigan 43, Iowa 37, Purdue 27, Northwestern 14, Indiana 2½ Wisconsin, Minnesota and Illinois had not scored.

Wally Ris of Iowa swam the 100-yard free style in 51.3 seconds in a time trial to set a new western conference record for the event. The old mark was 51.8, set by Halo Hirose of Ohio State in 1947. Hirose also qualified for the final in the event.

Fredericktown, Mt. Gilead Advance; Edison Beaten

WESTERVILLE — Fredericktown and Mt. Gilead advanced to quarter-final play in the Class B district basketball tournament here yesterday but Morrow county champion Edison came to the end of the road.

Edison fell, 53-39, before the spectacular shooting of Plain City. Fredericktown won from Newark St. Francis, 53-35, and Mt. Gilead surprised Granville, 59-39.

Two of the finest ballplayers in the state, Oscar Jefferson and Charles Ferguson, carried Plain City to its victory. Ferguson hit from under heavy guard for 26 points while Jefferson got 14 and handled the ball as if it were on a string.

Jefferson's 20 points in the second half was the ruination of Edison after the game was tied 22-22 at the intermission. Plain City scored the first 13 points of the third quarter.

For Fredericktown it was once again Merle Doyle who pumped home 25 points to show the way. The Freddies were never in trouble against a supposedly powerful club.

Women's City Pin Tourney Set to Open

Fritz Howell's . . . Chatter Sports

On top of that he's national prexy of the AAU, founder of the Knothole Gang, president of the National Caddy Tournament association, and the nation's No. 1 backer of sports for kids.

But around his office the 38-year-old mayor chews up at least 10 to 15 stogies a day. He never lights one. He resolved to quit smoking cigars several years ago and did it overnight.

He never works on the same cigar more than 30 minutes. He tosses the mutilated stogie into the top drawer of his desk and breaks out a new one. When his supply runs out he paws furiously through the drawer, selects an old one through some unfathomable method, and gives it a second going over.

Jim, as everyone around town knows him, lives for his private life. He'll make a speech anywhere, anytime, and does a whale of a job of it, but he goes into seclusion with his family every hour he can make it. When he reaches home at the end of the day his first act is to get into his pajamas and robe and launch a wrestling bout with his daughters, Suzanne, 6, and Saundra, 4. He loses every match.

Unless he has an engagement, you can't pry him out of the house at night. Drop-in visitors chat with him while he's in his robe and pajamas. He has his own sound projector and a host of platters for his record player and as a stay-at-home mayor he puts on a lot of shows for his famiy. He's also a song writer.

"Listen! When I'm out in public I'm in a glass bowl. Any other so-and-so in Columbus can party to his heart's content. All I'd have to do is accept one 3 2 beer in public and the next day the whole town would be hollering: 'Did you hear? The mayor was drunk as a lord last night.''

At his office he answers his own phone. Never closes the door unless a caller requests privacy. He lends money to indigents without batting an eye. He doesn't care for public reaction once he's convinced a project will do the most good for the greater number. He conducts all meetings on an informal basis, and is "Jim" to everyone.

He isn't too fond of lawyers, either. Along that line he says: "Lawyers are always telling you what you can't do. I want to know what I can do."

Jim was born down in Jackson county where his father was killed in a mine accident when Jim was eight years old. The family moved to Springfield. Jim was quite an athlete in high school there, despite the necessity of holding several jobs. He attended Ohio State university for a year, but did plenty of studying on the side to become a top-flight accountant and auditor.

He turned to politics when in his twenties, and was a member of the Columbus school board at 27. City auditor at 29, and mayor at 32.

He was in London for the Olympics, as president of the AAU, but came home from Europe with a slogan—"Come to Columbus and discover America."

About the cigar-chewing at home he says:

"Well, I run my office the way I want to run it. Helen runs our home the way she wants to run it. If she doesn't want cigars around the place I'll just have to go along. Hell, we're still on our honeymoon."

36 Quintets To Roll In 3 Sessions

Mansfield's second big bowling event of the year—the annual women's city tournament—will begin the first of three week-end stands at the Colony alleys Saturday night.

One-third or the 36 teams entered in the tournament will take to the lanes the first night, with another dozen coming on each Saturday. Doubles and singles will be rolled on two Sunafternoons, March 13 and 20.

ADD ONE MORE

The tournament's original dates included only two weekends but more than the expected number of entries caused the addition of a third Saturday. Forty-eight doubles teams and 96 singles are entered.

Prize list has not been completed but a tentative list set up by Evelyn Marshall and Garnet Karl starts team prizes at $10 and doubles and singles at around $10. Evelyn is tournament manager while Garnet is treasurer of the women's bowling association.

Set to roll the first night are Mansfield Beverage, Ohio Sport Center, Yuncker Sports, Mansfield Frosted Foods, Lemley's Cleaners, Outlet Furs, Schenk's Auto Refinish, Fairview Bar, PD's Bar, 36 Bar, Safety Cabs, and City News.

Following close in the wake of the women's tournament will be the annual News-Journal Headpin tournament which opens March 26.

Trophies for the joust have arrived and will be on display at the Colony, scene of the meet, sometime this week. The tourney will run 22 consecutive days with bowlers able to roll at any time.

Entries for the City Industrial tournament are now open, Colony alley Art Hilborn announced. The evnt will run either two or three weekends beginning April 9.

Closing date for entries will be March 26.

King's 28.5 Point Average Is Tops

NEW YORK — (AP) — George King of Morris Harvey, W. Va., college, appeared virtually certain today to wind up the season as the nation's leading individual basketball point-getter.

The National Collegiate Athletic bureau reported that King was riding along with a 28.5 average in 23 games through Feb. 26.

CLETE KAUFFMAN

Pro Wrestling Slated Here On Saturday

Professional wrestling will return to Mansfield next Saturday night in the National Guard armory.

The grunt and groaners have been absent from the Mansfield scene nearly two years. Three matches will be on the card planned by Clete Kauffman, the new Mansfield mat impressario

Kauffman, a former grappling champion, said yesterday, "I hope to land a couple of topnotch girl wrestlers for my show. I will have the entire card lined up within the next couple of days."

The Columbus man is now busy getting bleachers into the armory and everything in readiness for the card. The 48-year-old Kauffman wrestled for 18 years and has been connected with ring promotions in Columbus and Los Angeles. He quit active grappling in 1935.

Kauffman held the light heavyweight championship for three years, 1927 to 1930.

Playoff Game Set In League

Playoff game for the Westinghouse Inter-Department league championship will be held at 7.30 p.m. Monday in Rebecca Grubaugh school gym. Fighting for the title will be Z Building and E-12 who finished the regular schedule tied for first place with records of seven victories and two defeats.

The league completed its first season of play Thursday night.

Don Miller

Times change, and this fact was never driven home to me before as well as it was this past week end. The weather was beautiful, the sun beaming down and I was back in my old boyhood haunts.

I took a spin along the dam separating the two reservoirs at Wellington and just ached to get out and do a little fishing. Just about the time I was shaking with the old fever, I happened to spot two fellows just folding up their gear. As luck would have it, one was an old timer with whom I had made many a trip.

He smiled with just a twinge of apology, then muttered something like, "Pretty early. Kinda muddy, too. HAD THAT OLD FEVER AND JUST COULDN'T WAIT!"

Flopping around in the grass was one little perch, a scant catch indeed, but enough to ease the ravaging hunger felt after a long winter. Just seeing the darned thing made me feel better.

As I continued along the dam I could see where extensive work had been performed on the banks of the twin lakes. Small hills had been leveled, the shoreline smoothed, and grass planted. It looked very much like a city park. All the natural cover was gone, old tree stumps pulled out, and the only thing which even looked the same was the water itself.

I had one hope left, and that was an old oak stump where I had lost many a hook and caught many a fish when I was just a youngster. No luck there, either. The old stump was lying clear up on the bank in a pile of brush, just waiting for a match. Perhaps it's progress, I don't know, but I felt just as though an old friend had passed away.

The House Conservation committee this week recommended passage of a bill repealing the law requiring visible fishing licenses to be worn. Enforcement Chief Lester Bailey said the regulation 'impedes enforcement.'

That makes little sense to me! If a man has to have his license out where it can be seen, the game warden doesn't have to waste time by asking for each man's license. It's right there in the open. If the fisherman isn't wearing one, he's automatically a violator and subject to fine.

Now, how in the world can such an arrangement impede enforcement as Bailey claims? I'm darned proud to pin my little old badge out where it can be seen. It's proof that I've paid for my license, aided conservation, and have the right to fish all public waters.

Just unraveled about ten feet of that Cortland company's Cam - O - Flage casting line, and discovered something. If water conditions vary, you can cut a foot off the line and have a color to match the water! Looks like a pretty good deal, but I think I'll try a little of this extra-light test nylon spinning line this year.

Since I'll be fishing where there's plenty of room to cast, I'm going to see if it wouldn't be possible to use the two tip sections of a bass action fly rod with a casting handle, reel, and a spinning line with light baits. With one of those four-pound test lines and such a light rod a man should have a lot of fun.

Had a very prompt answer from Don Zody of Loudonville concerning the editorial comment which followed his letter as published in last week's paper. Don's letter reached here Monday morning, so he wasted no time. He disclaimed trapping the 154 foxes in New York state, was just submitting the figures to show what has been cited as the source of the diet of foxes.

And when he spoke of 'beating the bush to get a few young fox' he wan't talking about fox drives in the fall and winter. He was telling of an incident near Loudonville where a fox den was found and a number of people flocked in to see or find the pups. These 'visitors' destroyed fences, brush piles, birds nests, etc .according to Zody.

I've at last managed to satisfy a lifelong desire—I'm to judge the name for the Farm Bureau dog food in their contest! Believe it or not, they picked the right man for the job.

I may not know a beagle from a bugle, but I'm up to date on my dog food. It hasn't been too long ago that I went to the refrigerator, made four delicious sandwiches of some potted meat I found there, then learned it was dog food!

Best darned sandwiches I ever ate!

The old dispute concerning the placing of the quail on the game bird list is due to come before the state legislature this next week, and it promises to be a dilly of a battle.

State officials of the Conservation commission want the quail placed on the game bird list in order to spend money for its protection and propogation. Opponents fear such a transfer would endanger the bird's future in Ohio.

As for my part, I believe individual sportsmen and sportsmen's groups can do as much if not more for the bird than the state agencies. The problem lies in providing adequate cover and protection. The cover should fall upon the sportsmen and farmers to provide while the protection should be the function of the commission.

I'll just make a little prediction here after gazing into my crystal ball. If this move passes, so much pressure will be brought to bear on the conservation officials that an open season will be brought about long before the quail have gained numerical strength sufficient to bear even one season's shooting. And when Ohio hunters start in on the quail—look out, brother—we'll have less than we have today.

And I'm one of the fellows who gets a thrill out of having a covey scare me to death by bursting out from under my feet. I like to hunt them. But I don't want to have any part in eradicating them from the Ohio scene.

The warmish spell last week had several fishermen trying their luck at nearby lakes, but what is the advantage of good weather? In England this past week a heavy gale blew fish right into a church!

Richland Game Warden Exams Due In April

Theme Will Be Natural Resources

Examinations for game warden appointments will be held sometime in early April, State Conservation Commissioner H. A. "Buck" Rider has announced.

He urged that any Richland county men interested in following this career in outdoor work take the examination. Qualifications are the ability to spend long hours in the field and the possession of a keen interest in the outdoors, he added.

Those who pass the examination will be placed on the active duty list as soon as possible in areas where openings may exist. The position pays $213.50 per month with the warden being placed on a 90-day probation or trial period before receiving a permanent appointment.

Richland county has been without a game warden for the past year and will receive one of the wardens who successfully complete this examination.

Rider, who is to address the Richland County Fox Hunters' association on March 16, reiterated the need for public education along the lines of conservation of natural resources.

"I feel that my speech should cover first the natural resources and the tremendous need for public education that these resources might be properly managed in years to come," he said.

He will follow this coverage with a discussion concerning the various problems met in wildlife management where some species of wildlife must be kept to a minimum and others increased as much as possible.

"Wildlife conservation is never static," he declared, "and the division's challenge is to meet the various problems produced by an ever increasing industry and agriculture in Ohio."

Contract Signed For Fishing Lake

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Public Works Director George B. Sowers has signed a $177,000 contract for construction of a 183-acre fishing lake on Hargus creek in the picturesque devil's backbone area, three miles northeast of Circleville.

The lake will be created in a 330-acre park. Its average depth will be 25 feet and the deepest depth 50 feet. A 300-foot strip of public land will be reserved around the lake to bar any concessions. Conservation Commissioner H. A (Buck) Rider said. no power boats will be permitted.

A PROFESSIONAL

Don Miller:

After reading your articles about the fox, always very interesting, some of them sure make me laugh.

I have been a fox trapper for the past 30 years. I have trapped from Ohio to the plains states and Alberta and British Columbia. I have caught as many as 94 in five-week's time and as many as seven in one day, so I think I should know a little something about them.

Now I won't say that a fox will not kill game. They do, but so do the coon, possum, the skunk (rarely), and the great-horned owl. The fox isn't as bad as he is painted. He gets blamed for a lot of killings that are done by house cats.

Ground hog hunters and others who kill a few can never control them. It is the professional trappers who take them by the hundreds that count, as I have been for the past five years in south Ashland county. Now I am hated for doing it by the fox hunters.....

Patsy C. Webb,
R. D. No. 3
Loudonville

(Editor's comment: A lot of trapping, Pat, and glad to see a man stick up for the fox even though he does his best to catch all he can. One correction, though, they aren't MY articles. I don't write any of these letters. Thanks for the invitation to the Ohio Trapper's association convention and hope time will permit me to attend—D. M.)

Casting Expert on Program At Annual Sportsmen's Show

Some fancy casting will be demonstrated when the 12th annual American and Canadian Sportsmen's show opens March 18 in the public auditorium at Cleveland.

Running through March 27, this annual sports spectacle will provide for a variety of interests from fishing to fur exhibits.

Don Allen, 23-year-old casting champion from South Bend, Indiana will provide thrills for the spectators of the 90-minute stage and tank shows to be staged twice daily. Allen will give an unusual demonstration of trick casting climaxing in simultaneous casting with two rods in each hand.

The public will be able to try its hand at the sport when casting clinics will be held periodically during the Sportsmen's Show under the direction of experts.

Among the other acts of the star-studded show will be a six-girl water ballet, trick log rolling, diving sea lions, a daring indoor ski slide, a talking crow, and an "educated" horse.

In addition to the tank show, numerous walk-around attractions will lure outdoorsmen with gun displays, Indian crafts, rifle and archery ranges, a sheep-herding demonstration, a travel movie theatre, and many others.

More than 200 exhibitors of sports equipment will display the latest wares in boating, hunting, fishing, camping and other sports.

Many species of animals will be on hand to please animal lovers, including "friendly" bears, horses, sheep, waterfowl and upland game, rabbits and tropical fish!

Cellars Being Put Into Use

NEW YORK — Home owners who expect maximum value from their dwellings shouldn't overlook the cellar, too often the most neglected and least wisely-used section of the house.

Basements of too many homes have been non-productive dungeons, quite the opposite of the modern, attractive rooms above them. But the recent boom in home entertaining, accelerated by television, is inducing many home owners to transform cellars from exiles for old bicycles and trunks into livable areas that combine good looks with utility.

Partitioning, the use of moisture-proof floor and wall coverings, and modern lighting are important means of converting the once-shunned cellar into one of the most popular sections of the home.

Savings and Loan Assets Set Record

Total assets of the Ohio savings and loan industry exceeded $1,791,000,000 as of January 1, according to a report issued today by Don L. Tobin, executive secretary of the Ohio Savings and Loan League, 17 South High street, Columbus.

This was an increase of $102,700,000 for the year 1948, which set the total assets at a new all-time high in the history of the industry in the state, Mr. Tobin said.

A little poultry seasoning may be added to the flour or cracker crumbs in which chicken for frying or broiling is to be dipped.

700-1,000 Using Homes On Wheels

Housing Pinch Boosts Growth

By MALCOLM HARTLEY

At least 700—and perhaps as many as 1,000—persons live in trailers in Mansfield and vicinity. An exact census of trailer families is difficult because not all are located in trailer camps, or parks, as the operators prefer to call them.

Most of the "trailerites" in this area are permanent residents who shifted to the mobile homes because of housing shortages or high rent. Many of them can be regarded as potential home owners, particularly in the case of young couples with growing families.

Whether they eventually shift to permanent homes or remain in trailers they show no inclination to complain about their present quarters. They like their little houses on wheels, and are not looking for sympathy from people who reside in homes rooted to the ground.

Mansfield's three main parks are Trailer City on Ashland hill, Forest Gardens Trailer park on the Olivesburg road (both of which are a short distance outside the city limits) and the Ken-Mar Trailer park, 475 South Diamond street.

The oldest of these is Forest Gardens, established in 1933. It was taken over three years ago by the present operator, Robert D. Wise. In this park are 54 trailers, housing nearly 200 people. Seventy-five of the residents are children of school age or under. At least 75 per cent of the men are war veterans, Wise declared.

"Some families have been here ever since the camp was started," he stated. "But most are younger people who couldn't find homes or apartments after the war. Very few are transients."

NEED MORE ROOM

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Zeigler have lived in the park for two years. They had to build an extra room to provide space for themselves and their four children, Earl, 1½ years old, Gary, 2½, Jacquie 4 and Lanny, 7.

"We want to sell the trailer and get a house, but not because we don't like trailers," said Mrs. Zeigler. "Our family is now too big for a trailer."

Trailer City was established in 1937 by Henry J. Carew. At present it is being managed by Mrs. Lester McCullough while the Carews are in Florida.

"Mr. Carew started Trailer City as a hobby," said Mrs. McCullough. "It just kept growing until it got beyond the hobby stage."

In this park there are 63 families living in trailers, and 34 other families, in cabins. Many of the trailers are semi-permanent. An example is the trailer home of Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Kinzer and year old daughter. It sits on a concrete foundation. An adjoining concrete base forms the floor of an extra room, the walls of which are formed of transparent plastic.

Ken-Mar Trailer park, most recently established of the three, was opened in August, 1947 by K. H. Parker and M. L. Taylor. In it there are 55 trailers. The owners are constructing a picnic area adjoining the camp, and plan other improvements in the future.

THEY LIKE IT

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne D. Gault and son Larry 5, of Ken-Mar are confirmed trailerites. They began their married life in 1939—in a trailer. Gault, a tool maker, had to move to various parts of the country during the war years, and took his home along. In 1944 they purchased a house in Loudonville, but after three years sold it and purchased a larger trailer.

"When my wife saw the trailer we are now using, she decided she'd rather have it than a house," said Gault.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Graska and their son Bernard jr., 6, had to move out of their apartment, so they bought a trailer.

Harry Wing said he and his wife nearly froze in the house they were renting. They have been living in a trailer for two years, and say they will stick to it.

Charles Donathon, given the title of unofficial mayor at Ken-Mar, stated he and his wife are "sold" on trailer life after a trial of a year and one-half.

But Patty Lee Berkshire 8-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Forest Berkshire, was a bit lukewarm. She said she "sorta" likes trailers.

Mansfield is only one of many places where the use of trailers has expanded greatly in the past 10 or 15 years. Figures of a nationwide survey show that more than 400,000 people are living in trailers. In less than 20 years the trailer coach industry has developed into a $100,000,000 a year business, with more than 53,000 units produced last year. There are nearly 5,000 trailer parks spread across the nation.

Egg and Milk Ration Eased For British

LONDON —(AP)—Eggs and milk will be ration free during the flush production period this spring for the first time since 1941, Food Minister John Strachey said yesterday.

He added, however, "I am not claiming that this is more than temporary."

Present egg and milk rations seek to guarantee every infant one egg and a pint of milk a day, and every adult about one egg and two and a half pints of milk a week.

MURDER TRIAL DELAYED

LIMA —(AP)— The first degree murder trial of Richard E. Snyder, 26, yesterday was postponed from March 14 to March 28 at the request of special Prosecutor I. B. Steele. Snyder is accused of slaying his wife Eloise.

Reds Reclaim Swamp Lands

Located along the seacoast of Soviet Georgia these swamps were famous in antiquity and entered into Greek mythology and chronicles. They have rich soil but all attempts at drainage of the area formerly undertaken failed because of the fact that the swamps flooded whenever strong western winds forced up the waters of the Black Sea coast and drove them into the swamp areas.

The Soviets have now for years been carrying out a scientifically planned major effort to drain the swamps. Large areas have been reclaimed for citrus and other subtropical cultures.

FACTS ABOUT THE COST OF A BRICK HOME
Do You Know?
A brick costs only a little more than a frame home and saves you money every year on upkeep!
Everyone likes a brick home best—but few people realize that a sturdy dignified home of brick construction is as easy to own as one built of combustible materials.
Consider the extra cost of priming, painting and siding repair on a frame house—then remember that a brick home eliminates these expenses. You will see that the slight extra cost of brick in the first place will prove saving in the end.
Also remember that you can own a brick home for the same down payment and only a few pennies more a month.

You will find hundreds of ideas and suggestions in this practical Plan Book. Send for your FREE copy, now!

Advice Needed On Lighting

Fluorescent lighting should be chosen with the advice of a lighting expert, to avoid possible disappointment with this modern lighting in the home.

There are five types of fluorescent tubes. Under standard fluorescent, the color red loses vividness, while green, blue and white became yellowed. Soft white fluorescent makes red more vivid, blue takes on a lavender tint, white becomes pale pink. Colors are "cooled" by 4500-degree fluorescent, which is best confined to bathrooms and kitchens.

Daylight fluorescent makes red appear purple and has a tendency to make blond-finish furniture appear gray. A new fluorescent light called "warm-tone" accents warm shades and is flattering to skin tones and complexions and to food cloors.

Homesteaders Still Wanted For Alaska

ANCHORAGE, ALASKA — (UP) — Lowell Puckett, regional administrator for the bureau of land management, said numerous business sites are available along the portion of the Alcan Highway lying within Alaska.

Puckett warned that those who intend to homestead in the Territory should act now, because undesirable farm land near settled communities is going fast.

Small Home Design Number 5

Plan Calls For New Multiple Level Style of Architecture

This is a very practical small home of the new multiple level style of architecture. The side entrance is so arranged that this house could go either on a 40 ft. lot, or be placed the other way on a much wider lot.

The scale model shows this home constructed of cinder blocks with the vertical joints filled flush and the exterior painted white so that it gives the appearance of wide wood siding. Cable ends and trim are stained a rich walnut brown.

The living room is large, 15 x 30 ft., and inasmuch as it opens directly into the dining room, past of the open planned area is actually 30 x 26 ft. One wall of the living room is all picture window, as is one wall of the dining room. There is a door from the living room leading onto a terrace which you can view from your dining room picture window. To the left of the living room, as you enter, there are five steps leading up into the bedroom and bath area. In the corner of the living room, beside these steps, is a very well designed and beautiful fireplace. This arrangement allows for a cozy corner around this fireplace, and for another interesting placement of furniture facing the picture window.

As you go up stairs to the bedroom area, you are faced with a large closet, in which could be placed many bulky miscellaneous materials. Turning to the left, you find one bedroom, 11 x 14, and another 9 x 11. Both of these bedrooms have cross ventilation and both of them have large wardrobe closets which also employ folding doors. This arrangement gives you a great deal more space than is usually found in bedrooms of this size. Opposite both bedrooms is the bath with linen storage closet to one side.

The kitchen is very compactly designed. It is of the long, narrow variety with refigerator and sink on one side, along with ample shelf space and work areas. At one end is a range and opposite the sink is a work table which could be used for children's lunches or for hasty snacks. Beside the table is a large broom closet for the storage of cleaning materials.

The service entrance is directly opposite the stairs leading down into the cellar, facilitating the carrying of laundry in and out of this area.

The basement area is only under the left hand part of the house, and because the bedroom areas are five steps up, the basement need not be excavated to full basement depth. The basement has a laundry, heating room and a recreation room. This cuts down the cost of excavation considerably, and a higher elevation provides lots of light in this part of the home.

Plans and scale model for $7.00, with additional sets of building plans at $2.50, are available from the Scale Model Home Planning company, 505 Lafayette Building, Detroit 26, Mich.

Flood Action Results Told

CINCINNATI —(AP)— A Corps of Engineers officer reports that money spent on flood control since 1936 has reduced damages equivalent to a 45 per cent return on the federal investment.

Lt. Col. H. W. Fish, executive officer of the Pittsburgh district, made the statement in a talk to the Cincinnati chapter of the American Society of Military Engineers.

He said the three major floods on record, caused when the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers ran rampant in 1913, 1936 and 1937, affected the entire Ohio river basin. Damages amounted to more than $500,000,000, he estimated, adding that if they occurred today the money valuation would be double that total.

CONCEALED PIPES

When finishing the basement, overhead pipes should be boxed in for a beamed effect and to avoid the dust-catching nuisance of exposed pipes and wires.

Delves Deep Into Culture Of Germany

If you would like to know anything about early German culture, a good fellow to ask would be George Ridenour, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Ridenour, 64 Helen avenue, now a junior at the College of Wooster.

The author of an essay of 12,900 words — 43 typewritten pages — on the baroque idea of irregular rhythm in the German lyric, George said, "I simply got interested in the subject and the essay grew."

He read nearly all of the German poets of the early 17th century and analyzed their poetry, winding up his study with a consideration of the significance of the baroque for Germany and the world.

Court Sets Ten Cases For Hearing

Variety of Action On Week's Docket

Ten equity cases, covering a variety of subjects from disputes over property to a receivership request, are booked for trial this week in Richland county Common Pleas court.

The court will open its week Monday with a case in which John and Kristina Gross, East Mansfield, ask $1,000 damages from Theodore and Lalah Sauder and Edward Adams, who operated the Mansfield Sanitarium hospital in East Mansfield.

The plaintiffs ask that the defendants' interest in a driveway be annulled and charge that constant use of the drive near the Gross home caused Mrs. Gross to become nervous.

In another case for Monday John and Olive Knipp ask a $1,250 judgment from Harold Owens and Loretta Robbins under a contract to purchase plaintiffs' equity in lot 5 Mansfield. The plaintiffs ask court to determine the rights of all parties, including another defendant, Margaret L. Swank, of Attica, to a property at 542 Lida street.

Tuesday—The Merchants and Manufacturers Insurance company seek a judgment of $418 from John Richardson, Mansfield, R. D. 6, as the result of a car accident.

Ambrose Middleton, 611 Park avenue east, asks the court to quiet his title to part of Lots 371 and 372 Mansfield. Named defendants were Angelas Kotzabas of Canton and Quamil and Mary Ibrahin, and Michael and Mary Musille, all of Mansfield.

WANTS GARAGE MOVED

Wednesday—M. H. Harrah, 83 Rowland avenue, seeks a mandatory injunction to compel Andrionic Oroson of 246 Bowman street, to remove a garage from Harrah's property near Bowman and West Sixth streets.

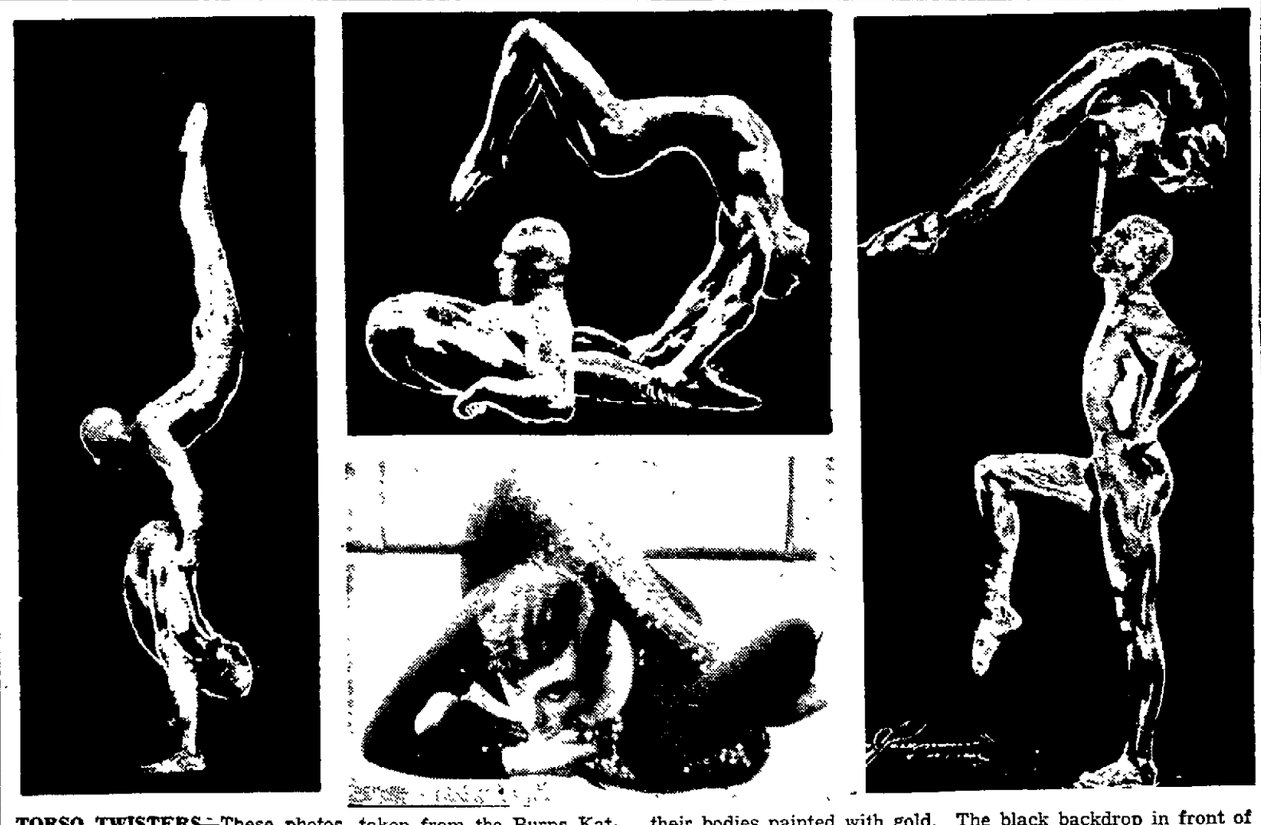
Arch Purdy, Park avenue east, asks that an accounting be made and a receiver appointed for an auto repair partnership set up by him and the defendant, R. J. Zimmerman, 87 Waring avenue. Purdy said he was to get 25 per cent of the profits, but Zimmerman refused to pay. Zimmerman, in an answer, said the percentage for Purdy was reduced to 10, but that he refused to accept.

Thursday — George Satterlee, Ashland road, asks a $3,000 judgment from Harry A. Yoha, 251 Home avenue, on a promissory note and asks that mortgaged equipment be sold to pay the note. Yoha said he purchased the Speedway Manufacturing company from Satterlee with the understanding that there were orders for 500 go-carts. He contends the orders did not materialize and he was damaged in the sum of $5,000. He asks cancellation of the note and a judgment of $2,000.

Mattie Lewis, as administrator of estate of Fred Lewis, seeks reformation of quit claim deed which divided lot 3561, Mansfield. She names as defendants, Lena Gross and O. B. Smith, Mansfield, and Guy and Lillian Barry, Springfield.

Friday—Harold E. Garverick seeks a judgment of $8,319 from June E. Gordon of 641 Woodhill road, for labor and materials used in remodeling her residence. In a cross-petition she asks $12,500, claiming the work was defective and not in accordance with remodeling plans.

Raymond D. Ashman jr., Lakewood and Employers' Fire Insurance company of Cleveland, ask that conveyance of a lot in Mansfield by Peter H. Jordon to his wife, Esther, be declared void. The petition asks that the lot be sold to satisfy a judgment of $40 for Ashman and $549 for the insurance company, won in Municipal court.



TORSO TWISTERS—These photos, taken from the Burns Kattenberg collection of material on the art of contortion, are just a few of the hundreds Kattenberg has in his world's largest collection. Already the author of many articles on the subject, Kattenberg is planning a book in which he will feature the Spurgat brothers, shown in the three top photos. The Danish pair, now appearing with a Paris revue, perform in slow motion, their bodies painted with gold. The black backdrop in front of which they are shown is part of an underwater scene in which they take the role of fishes. Their act already has become internationally famous. The "Great DeMarlo" of Ringling Bros.' circus, is shown in the center bottom photo. The contortionist wears serpent tights, favorite of the performers and is shown suspended in the air while twisted a snake fashion.

Thwarted Performer Bends Efforts To Chronography

Has World's Largest Collection on Contortionism

By MARGUERITE MILLER

Other little boys wanted to be firemen or railroad engineers. Burns Kattenberg wanted to be an acrobat.

Kattenberg's ambition never materialized under the kleig lights, but his childhood fascination for contortion has developed into the world's largest collection of material on the art.

As a starry-eyed youngster, Kattenberg saw himself reflected in the purple tights and spangles of a vaudeville entertainer who folded his lithe body into a tiny box. The boy ran home and tried the same trick in a cardboard carton from the corner grocery store. That was the beginning of the ambition—even though the boy didn't "fold up" as the contortionist had in the spotlight.

It didn't hurt his prestige in the neighborhood "kid" shows, though. He still was the leading—and only—acrobat in the juvenile company. Kattenberg could do backbends and could put his feet behind his head.

But lack of training soon showed. He decided that if the human pretzel art wasn't for him, he'd at least study it. Today, already the author of several articles on the subject, he's outlining a book which he hopes will contribute to the "revival of contortionism" which he considers a natural for the new entertainment medium of television.

His most recent honor in the field is an invitation to become a staff member of "Muscle Power," a publication devoted to acrobatics and contortionism. A recent article of his, published in the periodical, received such wide-spread comment that the publishers invited Kattenberg to join the staff. He has accepted.

AUTHOR AND COLLECTOR—Kattenberg, whose boyhood ambition to be an acrobat has grown into the world's largest collection on contortionism, is shown above as he pours over his voluminous files, parts of which will be soon recorded in a book he is writing on the art.

Meanwhile, the collection which now numbers literally thousands of acts, neatly kept in more than 300 folders, pictures, programs and even costumes, some 50 years old, is continually growing. Kattenberg's only competitor in the collection is a Chile resident with whom the Mansfielder has been swapping information for 15 years. Kattenberg still holds the edge on the material collected from every corner of the earth in which contortionism is practiced as a form of entertainment.

"Wanted: pictures, information and programs of contortion acts" read the newspaper and periodical ads with which Kattenberg started the collection in 1932. His first picture was from Paul Stein, a Pathe News movie director who had deserted contortionism. More replies followed until his mail box ran over with correspondence.

INCLUDES ALL RACES

Although every race is represented in Kattenberg's collection of the art, the Oriental countries and Germany seem to have turned out the best performers. Kattenberg credits it to strenuous teaching methods and to the fact that a "dumb" act, such as contortion, was more appreciated while touring countries of different languages than an act in which a certain language was spoken.

Kattenberg bewails the latest development in the art. As he puts it: "With few exceptions contortion has become a female act and the girls want to be billed as acrobatic dancers, not contortionists. Backers home tried to make the acts sophisticated by having the performers wear tails or sports clothes instead of tights. What we need is a revival of the old sawdust acts in tights and spangles to put the art back in its proper place."

Not appreciated enough for the years of training it requires to produce a performer, contortionism has borne up under international scandal, mistreatment, and stigma of lowly circus performers. Kattenberg told of the blotch on the art given in the late 1800's by German contortionists who would abduct English children and whip them into acrobats.

"After the men had broken the wills of the children sufficiently they would begin training them as acrobats and contortionists for traveling shows. If the children did not respond to the training they would be cast out to a vagabond life of begging for bread or starving —as happened in many cases. Fortunately this sort of thing was discovered and stopped."

The story of this mistreatment of the art will be included in Kattenberg's forthcoming book which will trace contortionism back through the ancient sculptures of Sumatra and Egypt and the Roman circus. Kattenberg already has 14 chapters of the book outlined and three chapters written.

Here in Mansfield, Kattenberg is best known, as yet, as the assistant manager of the Mansfield - Leland hotel and an avid follower of theatricals in general.

Recognized For Their Club Work

Go to Washington, Michigan Sessions

Two 4-H club members have been chosen from Richland county as state representatives to attend camps during the summer because of their outstanding activities and records in 4-H work.

County Agent C. N. McGrew made the announcement yesterday as 4-H club week got underway. McGrew and Miss Mabel Spray, county home demonstration agent, supervise the work in the county.

Chosen to go to the 4-H camp in Washington, D. C., in June, was William Wolford, of Mansfield, R. D. 2. Wolford, who is 19, is a student at Ashland college. He was one of four picked in the state. All were chosen on the basis of their records submitted to Columbus.

Named as one of two representatives from Ohio to attend Camp Miniwanca, near Shelby, Mich., was Betty Ann Hutchinson, 17, of Plymouth, R. D. 1. She will represent girls 4-H clubs of Ohio at the annual National Founders' camp. She was chosen by a special state committee.

She has completed 14 projects in seven years of club membership. The camp is sponsored by the Purina Mills, St. Louis.

In both instances, this is the first time that 4-H clubbers from Richland county have been picked for these honor awards, McGrew said.

Heralding the beginning of the membership drive, 4-H club week continues until next Sunday.

DINNER TUESDAY

Included in the week's program is a banquet for 4-H club advisers set for Tuesday at 6:30 p. m. in the First Methodist church, and sponsored by the Richland County Agricultural society.

The banquet committee includes Mrs. Elmer Snavely, Glenn Guthrie, Miss Spray and McGrew.

Another part of the program will be a "Tag Day" event, scheduled for 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. Saturday, in the county. Proceeds will go to the Richland Rural Life center.

McGrew said that 774 Richland county boys and girls participated in the 4-H club program during 1948. Of the number 505 were girls and 269 boys.

In Ohio, more than 60,000 members will during the week put their 1949 program in high gear, rallying under the banner, "Better Living for a Better World."

W. H. Palmer, state leader, said every phase of the 4-H program—heart, head, hands and health — will be emphasized. He said "4-H training enables farm youth to learn and practice to the fullest the American way of life."

PRAISES LEADERS

He said that at the end of 1948 there were 60,019 members enrolled in 67,457 projects in Ohio.

In the United States and a number of foreign countries, 2,000,000 farm boys ad girls are participating in the program. Ohio has 4,027 4-H clubs with 6,854 volunteer leaders.

Gov. Frank J. Lausche proclaimed Ohio 4-H club week, March 5 to 13.

Advice Needed On Lighting

Fluorescent lighting should be chosen with the advice of a lighting expert, to avoid possible disappointment with this modern lighting in the home.

There are five types of fluorescent tubes. Under standard fluorescent, the color red loses vividness, while green, blue and white became yellowed. Soft white fluorescent makes red more vivid, blue takes on a lavender tint, white becomes pale pink. Colors are "cooled" by 4500-degree fluorescent, which is best confined to bathrooms and kitchens.

Daylight fluorescent makes red appear purple and has a tendency to make blond-finish furniture appear gray. A new fluorescent light called "warmtone" accents warm shades and is flattering to skin tones and complexions and to food cloors.

Homesteaders Still Wanted For Alaska

ANCHORAGE, ALASKA — (UP) — Lowell Puckett, regional administrator for the bureau of land management, said numerous business sites are available along the portion of the Alcan Highway lying within Alaska.

Puckett warned that those who intend to homestead in the Territory should act now, because undesirable farm land near settled communities is going fast.

Small Home Design Number 5

Plan Calls For New Multiple Level Style of Architecture

This is a very practical small home of the new multiple level style of architecture. The side entrance is so arranged that this house could go either on a 40 ft. lot, or be placed the other way on a much wider lot.

The scale model shows this home constructed of cinder blocks with the vertical joints filled flush and the exterior painted white so that it gives the appearance of wide wood siding. Cable ends and trim are stained a rich walnut brown.

The living room is large, 15 x 30 ft., and inasmuch as it opens directly into the dining room, past of the open planned area is actually 30 x 26 ft. One wall of the living room is all picture window, as is one wall of the dining room. There is a door from the living room leading onto a terrace which you can view from your dining room picture window. To the left of the living room, as you enter, there are five steps leading up into the bedroom and bath area. In the corner of the living room, beside these steps, is a very well designed and beautiful fireplace. This arrangement allows for a cozy corner around this fireplace, and for another interesting placement of furniture facing the picture window.

As you go up stairs to the bedroom area, you are faced with a large closet, in which could be placed many bulky miscellaneous materials. Turning to the left, you find one bedroom, 11 x 14, and another 9 x 11. Both of these bedrooms have cross ventilation and both of them have large wardrobe closets which also employ folding doors. This arrangement gives you a great deal more space than is usually found in bedrooms of this size. Opposite both bedrooms is the bath with linen storage closet to one side.

The kitchen is very compactly designed. It is of the long, narrow variety with refigerator and sink on one side, along with ample shelf space and work areas. At one end is a range and opposite the sink is a work table which could be used for children's lunches or for hasty snacks. Beside the table is a large broom closet for the storage of cleaning materials.

The service entrance is directly opposite the stairs leading down into the cellar, facilitating the carrying of laundry in and out of this area.

The basement area is only under the left hand part of the house, and because the bedroom areas are five steps up, the basement need not be excavated to full basement depth. The basement has a laundry, heating room and a recreation room. This cuts down the cost of excavation considerably, and a higher elevation provides lots of light in this part of the home.

Plans and scale model for $7.00, with additional sets of building plans at $2.50, are available from the Scale Model Home Planning company, 505 Lafayette Building, Detroit 26, Mich.

Flood Action Results Told

CINCINNATI —(AP)— A Corps of Engineers officer reports that money spent on flood control since 1936 has reduced damages equivalent to a 45 per cent return on the federal investment.

Lt. Col. H. W. Fish, executive officer of the Pittsburgh district, made the statement in a talk to the Cincinnati chapter of the American Society of Military Engineers.

He said the three major floods on record, caused when the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers ran rampant in 1913, 1936 and 1937, affected the entire Ohio river basin. Damages amounted to more than $500,000,000, he estimated, adding that if they occurred today the money valuation would be double that total.

CONCEALED PIPES

When finishing the basement, overhead pipes should be boxed in for a beamed effect and to avoid the dust-catching nuisance of exposed pipes and wires.

Delves Deep Into Culture Of Germany

If you would like to know anything about early German culture, a good fellow to ask would be George Ridenour, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Ridenour, 64 Helen avenue, now a junior at the College of Wooster.

The author of an essay of 12,900 words — 43 typewritten pages — on the baroque idea of irregular rhythm in the German lyric, George said, "I simply got interested in the subject and the essay grew."

He read nearly all of the German poets of the early 17th century and analyzed their poetry, winding up his study with a consideration of the significance of the baroque for Germany and the world.

Variety of Action On Week's Docket

Ten equity cases, covering a variety of subjects from disputes over property to a receivership request, are booked for trial this week in Richland county Common Pleas court.

The court will open its week Monday with a case in which John and Kristina Gross, East Mansfield, ask $1,000 damages from Theodore and Lalah Sauder and Edward Adams, who operated the Mansfield Sanitarium hospital in East Mansfield.

The plaintiffs ask that the defendants' interest in a driveway be annulled and charge that constant use of the drive near the Gross home caused Mrs. Gross to become nervous.

In another case for Monday John and Olive Knipp ask a $1,250 judgment from Harold Owens and Loretta Robbins under a contract to purchase plaintiffs' equity in lot 5 Mansfield. The plaintiffs ask court to determine the rights of all parties, including another defendant, Margaret L. Swank, of Attica, to a property at 542 Lida street.

TORSO TWISTERS—These photos, taken from the Burns Kattenberg collection of material on the art of contortion, are just a few of the hundreds Kattenberg has in his world's largest collection. Already the author of many articles on the subject, Kattenberg is planning a book in which he will feature the Spurgat brothers, shown in the three top photos. The Danish pair, now appearing with a Paris revue, perform in slow motion, their bodies painted with gold. The black backdrop in front of which they are shown is part of an underwater scene in which they take the role of fishes. Their act already has become internationally famous. The "Great DeMarlo" of Ringling Bros.' circus, is shown in the center bottom photo. The contortionist wears serpent tights, favorite of the performers and is shown suspended in the air while twisted a snake fashion.

Thwarted Performer Bends Efforts To Chronography

Has World's Largest Collection on Contortionism

By MARGUERITE MILLER

Other little boys wanted to be firemen or railroad engineers. Burns Kattenberg wanted to be an acrobat.

Kattenberg's ambition never materialized under the kleig lights, but his childhood fascination for contortion has developed into the world's largest collection of material on the art.

As a starry-eyed youngster, Kattenberg saw himself reflected in the purple tights and spangles of a vaudeville entertainer who folded his lithe body into a tiny box. The boy ran home and tried the same trick in a cardboard carton from the corner grocery store. That was the beginning of the ambition—even though the boy didn't "fold up" as the contortionist had in the spotlight.

It didn't hurt his prestige in the neighborhood "kid" shows, though. He still was the leading—and only—acrobat in the juvenile company. Kattenberg could do backbends and could put his feet behind his head.

But lack of training soon showed. He decided that if the human pretzel art wasn't for him, he'd at least study it. Today, already the author of several articles on the subject, he's outlining a book which he hopes will contribute to the "revival of contortionism" which he considers a natural for the new entertainment medium of television.

His most recent honor in the field is an invitation to become a staff member of "Muscle Power," a publication devoted to acrobatics and contortionism. A recent article of his, published in the periodical, received such wide-spread comment that the publishers invited Kattenberg to join the staff. He has accepted.

Meanwhile, the collection which now numbers literally thousands of acts, neatly kept in more than 300 folders, pictures, programs and even costumes, some 50 years old, is continually growing. Kattenberg's only competitor in the collection is a Chile resident with whom the Mansfielder has been swapping information for 15 years. Kattenberg still holds the edge on the material collected from every corner of the earth in which contortionism is practiced as a form of entertainment.

AUTHOR AND COLLECTOR—Kattenberg, whose boyhood ambition to be an acrobat has grown into the world's largest collection on contortionism, is shown above as he pours over his voluminous files, parts of which will be soon recorded in a book he is writing on the art.

"Wanted: pictures, information and programs of contortion acts" read the newspaper and periodical ads with which Kattenberg started the collection in 1932. His first picture was from Paul Stein, a Pathe News movie director who had deserted contortionism. More replies followed until his mail box ran over with correspondence.

INCLUDES ALL RACES

Although every race is represented in Kattenberg's collection of the art, the Oriental countries and Germany seem to have turned out the best performers. Kattenberg credits it to strenuous teaching methods and to the fact that a "dumb" act, such as contortion, was more appreciated while touring countries of different languages than an act in which a certain language was spoken.

Kattenberg bewails the latest development in the art. As he puts it; "With few exceptions contortion has become a female act and the girls want to be billed as acrobatic dancers, not contortionists. Backers home tried to make the acts sophisticated by having the performers wear tails or sports clothes instead of tights. What we need is a revival of the old sawdust acts in tights and spangles to put the art back in its proper place."

Not appreciated enough for the years of training it requires to produce a performer, contortionism has borne up under international scandal, mistreatment, and stigma of lowly circus performers. Kattenberg told of the blotch on the art given in the late 1800's by German contortionists who would abduct English children and whip them into acrobats.

"After the men had broken the wills of the children sufficiently they would begin training them as acrobats and contortionists for traveling shows. If the children did not respond to the training they would be cast out to a vagabond life of begging for bread or starving—as happened in many cases. Fortunately this sort of thing was discovered and stopped."

The story of this mistreatment of the art will be included in Kattenberg's forthcoming book which will trace contortionism back through the ancient sculptures of Sumatra and Egypt and the Roman circus. Kattenberg already has 14 chapters of the book outlined and three chapters written.

Here in Mansfield, Kattenberg is best known, as yet, as the assistant manager of the Mansfield - Leland hotel and an avid follower of theatricals in general.

Recognized For Their Club Work

Go to Washington, Michigan Sessions

Two 4-H club members have been chosen from Richland county as state representatives to attend camps during the summer because of their outstanding activities and records in 4-H work.

County Agent C. N. McGrew made the announcement yesterday as 4-H club week got underway. McGrew and Miss Mabel Spray, county home demonstration agent, supervise the work in the county.

Chosen to go to the 4-H camp in Washington, D. C., in June, was William Wolford, of Mansfield, R. D. 2. Wolford, who is 19, is a student at Ashland college. He was one of four picked in the state. All were chosen on the basis of their records submitted to Columbus.

Named as one of two representatives from Ohio to attend Camp Miniwanca, near Shelby, Mich., was Betty Ann Hutchinson, 17, of Plymouth, R. D. 1. She will represent girls 4-H clubs of Ohio at the annual National Founders' camp. She was chosen by a special state committee.

She has completed 14 projects in seven years of club membership. The camp is sponsored by the Purina Mills, St. Louis.

In both instances, this is the first time that 4-H clubbers from Richland county have been picked for these honor awards, McGrew said.

Heralding the beginning of the membership drive, 4-H club week continues until next Sunday.

DINNER TUESDAY

Included in the week's program is a banquet for 4-H club advisers set for Tuesday at 6:30 p. m. in the First Methodist church, and sponsored by the Richland County Agricultural society.

The banquet committee includes Mrs. Elmer Snavely, Glenn Guthrie, Miss Spray and McGrew.

Another part of the program will be a "Tag Day" event, scheduled for 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. Saturday, in the county. Proceeds will go to the Richland Rural Life center.

McGrew said that 774 Richland county boys and girls participated in the 4-H club program during 1948. Of the number 505 were girls and 269 boys.

The girls completed 572 projects, principally in sewing and nutrition work. The boys completed 216, mainly in livestock, agricultural engineering and crops.

In Ohio, more than 60,000 members will during the week put their 1949 program in high gear, rallying under the banner, "Better Living for a Better World."

W. H. Palmer, state leader, said every phase of the 4-H program—heart, head, hands and health—will be emphasized. He said "4-H training enables farm youth to learn and practice to the fullest the American way of life."

PRAISES LEADERS

He said that at the end of 1948 there were 60,019 members enrolled in 67,457 projects in Ohio.

In the United States and a number of foreign countries, 2,000,000 farm boys ad girls are participating in the program. Ohio has 4,027 4-H clubs with 6,854 volunteer leaders.

Gov. Frank J. Lausche proclaimed Ohio 4-H club week, March 5 to 13.

City Given Once-Over

Two Hollywood 'Starlets' Pay Mansfield Quick Visit

Two of Hollywood's younger set, Meg Randall and Richard Long, gave Mansfield a quick once-over Thursday while on their way to Cincinnati for the world premiere, Friday, of Universal-International's "Life of Riley." They have the lead romantic roles in the comedy, the second picture in which they have teamed.

Miss Randall, an Oklahoma girl who was seeing Ohio for her first time, found the countryside impressive.

"Oklahoma farms are fine," she said, "but your farms in Richland county are exceptional. I've never seen such fine looking modern farm houses and well-kept fields."

Miss Randall plays the part of Riley's daughter in the new film. She got her first picture roles after being "discovered" by Clarence Brown while he was talent scouting at the University of Oklahoma, where she majored in dramatics.

Long took added interest in Mansfield when he learned that Louis Bromfield's Malabar Farm is located near here.

Gushing girls gave Long the break that landed him in the movies. Two Hollywood students who were given a lift in the car of a Universal casting director raved so much about the boy who had the leading role in the school play that the director became interested. He had a screen test made of the boy, Richard Long. As a result Long was given the role of Claudette Colbert's son in "Tomorrow Is Forever." Afterward he played in "The Stranger, "Tap Roots" and "The Egg and I." This season he was teamed with Miss Randall in "Criss Cross," and next in "Life of Riley."

Mansfielders will have a chance to see "Life of Riley" on the heels of the Cincinnati premiere. The film is booked at the Madison for a midnight prevue on Saturday, March 12, with regular showing beginning on Sunday, March 13.

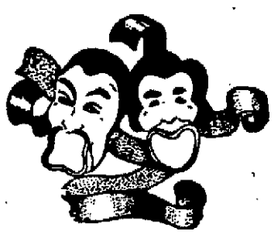
Curtain Call



By MARGUERITE MILLER

Mansfielders who saw it couldn't praise it highly enough. Those who missed it should be sorry.

We're talking about Judith Anderson's "Medea," which played the Hanna in Cleveland last week.

Critics say the Guthrie McClintic production is the greatest triumph of Miss Anderson's long and distinguished career. Once you see the play, you immediately wish you could catch up on all the Anderson-starred vehicles. If they're all as beautifully done as "Medea," you can skip the comparisons. Anderson's terrific!

* * *

We don't get seats at half-price for this, but some of you may want to know what's coming up in the entertainment line at the Hanna in the next few months. Here's the schedule: "The Heiress" with Basil Rathbone is now playing; "Brigadoon" a musical, opens March 14 and runs through March 27.

The week of March 28 brings "Street Car Named Desire"; followed by "Carousel" the week of Monday, April 4. "High Button Shoes" with Eddie Foy jr., plays May 9 through May 22.

At last! Hollywood is going to capitalize on the Paul Kelly talent. Kelly, fresh from 70 of the most successful weeks on Broadway as Colonel Dennis in "Command Decision," has been signed by Hal Wallis for a top role with Barbara Stanwyck and Wendell Corey in "Thelma Jordon" at Paramount.

The talented Kelly, who has been hidden in Hollywood's second rate pictures for years, had been spotlighted in many hit plays for 15 years before trying Hollywood. "Command Decision" pulled him out of the casting rut in Hollywood and probably opened some eyes in the film capital.

Lottie Elwen's Doing OK

By MAL HARTLEY

Remember Lottie Elwen, former Viennesse musical comedy starlet, who came to Mansfield last October to mend a broken heart?

Whether it was the pure Mansfield air or just a change of scenery that did it, Miss Elwen's heart is once again intact. And her career is progressing at a merry clip.

The captivating Austrian singer has just completed her first movie, a four-week "quickie" made in a New York studio under the title of "C-Men." She plays the lead feminine role, and is scheduled for three more similar films. The pictures are being released by Film Classics.

Miss Elwen is singing five nights a week at the Viennesse Lantern in New York, but finds time to fill other engagements such as the role of a seductive spy in a radio play on station WOR, Feb. 27. She was interviewed recently by a representative from Columbia Pictures, and there seems a good chance she'll be given a Hollywood film role.

Recently Lottie sang for John Loder, Hedy Lemarr's ex-husband. A tip to avid readers of Hollywood gossip columns is that Louella Parsons picked up the incident and is soon going to print an exclusive revelation that Hedy's former head man now has a new heart interest; namely, Lottie.

LOTTIE ELWEN

But just between us fans, the truth is that Lottie didn't even know who Loder was, until afterwards.

When Miss Elwen was here last October, stardom seemed a bit remote to her. "I'm ready—but Hollywood isn't," she commented. From the look of things, maybe Hollywood is now ready, too. If Lottie isn't too tied up with career problems, she'll be back in Mansfield in the summer for another visit with her mother's childhood friends, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Scheuer, 120 Lind avenue.

TELEVISION NO HELP

WORCESTER, Mass. — Lorton C. Walden, superintendent of the Worcester insurance fire patrol, says he doesn't appose progress but objects to television. Ever since a business concern donated a television set for patrol headquarters, Walden said, "I can't get any work out of the men because they're too busy watching the show."

Duchin Gets Back In Groove

Eddie Duchin, whose orchestra went by the boards while he was in navy service during the war, is back on tour again with his own outfit. After getting his navy discharge, Duchin accepted an NBC radio post as solo pianist.

Duchin and his orchestra are scheduled for a one-day appearance at the Ohio theater on Wednesday, March 9. The show will include the acts of Gary Morton, comedian and Bert and Ballow, dance satirists.

King William II of Britain, an unjust and grasping ruler, invoked the wrath of the church by selling church offices or keeping them unoccupied so he could keep the revenue for himself.
